Facilitating Hope

In late summer we were invited to restart in-person workshops at our Skagit County Juvenile Detention site. Before the Covid-19 pandemic, we had facilitated many in-person workshops at this site, but in previous years we have met with students by videoconference and even Skype. We’ve been able to continue to offer student workshops via social media and intermittent Covid-19 era episodes. We have continued to publish student writing via our communications work. Paul Quiara and the Emancipated Stories crew!” was the second great project we began before the pandemic hit.

We were grateful to learn recently that we received a generous grant from The Norcliffe Foundation for our work in helping to amplify student voices via our communications work. Paul Quiara and the Emancipated Stories crew!” was the second great project we began before the pandemic hit.

Our sites

We serve migrant, incarcerated, recovery, and other at-need populations. We aim to assist in the restoration of communities, the imagination, and the quality of life for all people in our community. Thank you, the Norcliffe Foundation’s mission is to improve the lives of children and families in the Pacific Northwest and in the countries of Ecuador and Costa Rica. Succeeding generations of the family continue the legacy of John Norcliffe, Jr., who was a founding trustee of the foundation.

The family developed and operated the Norcliffe Enterprises, a agribusiness in the wheat and dairy industry that is now owned by private shareholders and managed by a separate board of directors.

The latest issue of KITE was released a few weeks ago. Issue 9 features writings from Quiara and the Emancipated Stories crew!” was the second great project we began before the pandemic hit. Jen Bradbury. With directness, emotion, and humor, they riff on Baca’s poem, or—as another option—write about the experience of reading and then the students turned to their own writing. I suggested sometimes it is such a dream, a dream, but I will always keep my head up. It’s a cloudy day. People think they know, but I will always keep my head up. It’s a cloudy day.
