

Food + Wine Festival 2015 Spices up Roger Sherman Baldwin Park

Chef, author and notable television personality Geoffrey Zakarian, who will soon open The National at the bottom Greenwich Avenue.

Greenwich Food+Wine Festival's Culinary Village drew an enormous crowd to Roger Sherman Baldwin Park on Saturday for Serendipity's fifth annual event. Bigger and better than ever, thousands poured into the park on a perfect sunny afternoon, mingling with friends as they noshed on freshly prepared concoctions, including Executive Chef Passaro's delicious Tuna Tacos from Little Pub, samples from soon-to-open Fleisher's Craft Butchery and mouthwatering cupcakes courtesy of Sweet Lisa's Exquisite Cakes.

A popular tent allowed guests to try their luck at games courtesy of Empire City Casino.

Throughout the afternoon, guests paced themselves as they maneuvered through the celebrity studded crowd, choosing from a wide array of restaurant and vendor tastings, cooking demonstrations, and samplings of beer, wine and spirits.