Lawyers with solutions

Sixteen “attorneys” from Eversheds along with clients and PR supremo Imogen Lee, were in Dublin over the weekend — acting as the UK end for the start of this year’s LawWithoutWalls programme. Originally the bright idea of University of Miami school of law, the programme brings together an “elite group” of students from around the world to work together virtually for a period of three months on legal and business problems. It all ends in April at the ConPosium in Miami, where the students present their ideas to a judging panel on issues with catchy titles such as “In a Global World, How do Corporations Reduce the Dark Zone of Unknown Corporate Misconduct? There’s Got to be a Solution for That.” If they don’t qualify for a Davos invitation in 20 years then something will have gone wrong.
