About me

My name is Robert Joseph Manning and I am a multidisciplinary creative, with interests that chiefly lie in graphic design and illustration. I believe design profoundly affects the way we feel and respond to what is before our eyes. I have been making things, drawing and learning for as long as I can remember.

I currently work as a junior graphic designer for a small clothing brand, and work on a number of freelance projects including web design, illustration and print. My illustration work has appeared in galleries and been featured on numerous art blogs and websites. I am currently seeking new and exciting opportunities to further my career in the creative industry.
