

Building the new economy: activism, enterprise and social change

16 & 17 August 2016 — Glebe Town Hall, Sydney

Today's economy is built on the foundations of a global industrial and financial system with immense productive capacity, but the extractive nature of which has created extreme income disparity and social injustice and wrought devastation on the natural world. There is an increasingly spirited debate about the need for a 'new economy', which has fertile and important implications for the legal and philosophical foundations of the current system. What are different visions of the 'new economy' and how achievable are they? What possibilities exist at their intersection? How can we reimagine work, exchange, money, care, law and our relationship with the natural world through the prism of a new economy?

Our two day conference will bring together community activists, social entrepreneurs, economists, academics, lawyers and regulators, to discuss, showcase and weave together the explosion of experiments that are bubbling up around peer-to-peer initiatives, commoning, maker movements, sharing, buen vivir, collaborative economies, solidarity economies, localisation and cooperative movements. The conference will include an interactive plenary session on Day 2, which will enable interested participants to co-design a Charter for a New Economy Coalition in Australia.

Creating a Charter for a New Economy Coalition in Australia. Led by Dr Michelle Maloney, AELA and Professor Bronwen Morgan, UNSW

This session will facilitate discussions about how we might create a New Economy Coalition in Australia. Information about a proposed Charter will be provided to conference participants prior to the conference, to enable effective discussions in this final session. Discussions will include an overview of international and national networks that a new Coalition may aim to connect with, and will include remarks by David Thompson AM (CEO Jobs Australia) about RIPESS, an international network that connects social solidarity economy groups. Participants will be invited to share updates and materials from other networks as part of this session.

5.00 Close of Conference

Music for a Warming World

Thinking differently about our environmental challenges - a musical and visual experience

Songwriter, guitarist and climate thinker, Dr Simon Kerr and Prof Christine Parker (University of Melbourne, Law), have developed a new way of exploring important environmental challenges.

Using original music, immersive visuals and audience engagement, Music for a Warming World takes an insightful, entertaining and warmhearted journey into climate change.

It explores the science, engages with loss and the inevitable changes we face, and brings some surprisingly good news about what we can do.

'Extremely engaging and powerful, both intellectually and emotionally' (Prof Don Hine, University of New England)

Glebe Justice Hall, 37-47 St Johns Rd, Glebe
