Connecting Everyone in San Francisco to Local Nature

Nature in the City’s mission is to foster a deeper connection between people and the natural world through restoration, education, and advocacy. We partner with like-minded organizations, including Reimagining San Francisco, Enterprise for Youth, SF Crosstown Trails, SF Parks Alliance, and our Sunset Nature Advocacy Partners: Sutro Stewards and Garden for the Environment. We connect people to nature all across the city. Recently we held or attended events at Candlestick Point, Marshalls Beach in the Presidio, Fort Funston, McLaren Park, Chase Center, California Academy of Sciences, and many places in between!

Over 13,000 Nature in the City Maps

We recently gave away over 13,000 copies of the beloved Nature in the City map to our supporters and partners. This beautiful map documents San Francisco’s flora and fauna, diverse habitats, and geological features. Write to us to request maps for your friends, family, students, staff, visitors, or just for yourself!
Thank You!

Your ongoing commitment to Nature in the City ensures that nature is healthy and available to everyone in San Francisco for years to come. Your generous support helps us:

- create & nurture native habitats
- keep nature walks free for all
- provide career training for young people
- incubate future leaders & advocates

Special thanks to the Seed Consulting Group for collaborating on a strategic communications plan, pro bono. And thanks to Atlassian staff and friends for a huge volunteer workday at Adah’s Stairway and for their financial support. To all our financial supporters and volunteers, we can’t do this important work without you!

Could you donate $1,000 to fund a student intern or Youth Council member or to support a Youth in Action event?

Three Youth in Action Events

Our Youth in Action program led three joyful nature events for young people: Green Hairstreak Corridor Bioblitz, Palou Phelps Park Showcase, and Alemany Farm Forage & Scavenger Hunt. We’re grateful for a Shine On! grant from SF Parks Alliance and SF Office of Workforce and Economic Development.

Ask us how we can help your garden support pollinators and other wildlife!
