DOCUMENTARY FILMS

Ainslie, R. C. (1999). Crossover: A story of desegregation. 55-minute documentary film on the desegregation of schools in a small East Texas community and a community's reflections on the fate of the Civil Rights Era. Funded by the Texas Council for the Humanities. "Crossover" has been screened in over 25 universities, conferences, and community events. It became the springboard for a collaborative project between the Texas Council for the Humanities (now known as Humanities Texas), The Texas Association of Developing Colleges, and the Texas African American Heritage Association to document personal narratives about the coming of school desegregation in Texas communities. Parallel and Crossover Lives: Texas Before and After Desegregation, became a pilot community oral history project at Jarvis Christian College in Hawkins and Huston-Tillotson College in Austin. With funding through the "Extending the Reach" initiative of the National Endowment for the Humanities.

Ainslie, R. C. (2006). Looking North: Mexican Images of Immigration. 30-minute documentary film about how Mexicans who remain in Mexico view the phenomenon of immigration.

Ainslie, R. C. (2007). Ya Basta! 75-minute documentary film exploring the wave of kidnappings and crime that have swept over Mexico in the last decade through interviews with victims, Mexican law enforcement, and experts.

Ainslie, R.C. (2010). The Mystery of Consciousness. A 27-minute documentary film project in which I use interviews with some of the world's leading neuroscientists to understand the ways the brain produces the experience of consciousness. Funded by the Mind Science Foundation.

Ainslie, R.C. (2014). The Mark of War. A 60-minute documentary about five men who served in the Vietnam War, their lives, and the psychological legacy of having served in combat (rough cut). Funded by Humanities Texas, the Texas Filmmakers Production Fund, Veterans of foreign Wars, and the Yip Harburg Foundation.

DOCUMENTARY EXHIBITS

Ainslie, R. C. (in collaboration with documentary photographer Sarah Wilson) "Jasper, Texas: The healing of a community in crisis"
This is a traveling photographic exhibit related to my work in Jasper in which I have explored the aftermath of the murder of James Byrd (see "presentations" for listing of exhibit dates and venues. The exhibit is now part of the Humanities Texas permanent collection.
