Jai is a photographer and author whose photography has been seen in publications such as the Washington Post, Serious Eats, Michelin Guide, and Ad Week to name a few. She has photographed for both domestic and international tourism boards. Additionally, her work was selected as a semi-finalist in competitions such as Restaurant Association of Metropolitan Washington's RAMMYs in Focus, and The Historical Society of D.C.'s For the Record.

Contributing her photography to books like New York One-Food Wonders and Discovering Vintage Washington, DC, Jai's creative spirit focuses on the food, beverage, and travel industries. She has also co-authored a book on the plantations of Virginia, and enjoys researching as well as photographing the South’s past, present, and future.