Monze commemorates Mumuni Library
Mumuni Library will enhance children’s education - Hademu

The literacy crisis in Zambia is a big challenge. It has devastating impact on the education outcomes especially in rural school locations such as Mumuni where facilities are not available.

The importance of library facilities in the delivery of education to every child cannot be overemphasised, especially in the rural areas of Zambia. It is also a well-known fact that knowledge and skills are never preserved if unassisted in books and other print media.

Mumuni, located in the Northern Province, is a small village where children do not have access to educational material. The village has no library, and children have to travel long distances to access books.

Giles Chikondi, the manager of the Mumuni Library, explains that libraries are very important because they open up the world to children and give them new experiences as well as opportunities.

The opportunity for educational libraries that offer unparalleled facilities to children can help them to advance their education, learn new things, and develop new ideas. Libraries provide a platform for children to read, write, and engage with different cultures and perspectives.
