F2F founder, Rosemary Trible, was recognized by the Virginia General Assembly this year for her tireless efforts in supporting victims of sexual assault.

Using her own experience as a rape survivor, Rosemary has dedicated her life to helping others find joy and hope in healing. As the founder of F2F, Rosemary has helped empower college students and survivors of sexual assault throughout the state of Virginia.

Her dedication to F2F has allowed the organization to grow nationally, partnering with universities and hospitals across the country to provide education, information, and support to college students and survivors in an effort to end sexual assault.

By providing information on college campuses about sexual assault, almost 23,000 F2F Aftercare Kits have been assembled and distributed worldwide and thousands of students and survivors have been impacted.

In addition to her work with F2F, Rosemary has served on the Governor’s task force for combatting sexual violence on college campuses in Virginia. She has also authored a book, Fear to Freedom, which recounts her experience as a survivor of sexual assault.

Rosemary’s dedication to this issue is unwavering and truly inspiring. We applaud her efforts and strength as an advocate and role model for young adults everywhere.
The new iCare Kits are modeled after our Aftercare Kits, which have received glowing reviews from forensic nurses and hospital administrators across the country.

However, after speaking with survivors, we realized that not every victim goes to the hospital following an assault. In fact, some survivors do not report what has happened to them at all. While those who do come forward may take weeks, months, or even years to come forward. At this point, it is too late for a PERK exam, but it is not too late to show someone support.

No matter when a survivor comes forward, they deserve to receive a gift of hope. We wanted to make sure whenever a survivor decides to disclose their story that they feel supported and encouraged, so we created the iCare Kit.

The iCare Kit does not contain clothing or toiletries. Instead it provides more resources and tools for survivors recovering from trauma. It provides them with a trademarked Freedom Bear, lengthy resource card, hand-written note, journal, pen, stress ball, tissues, and a protection whistle.

Now counselors, educators, social workers, physicians, and even family members can show a survivor they care by giving an iCare Kit. This gift of support can be handed to a survivor at any point during recovery, and is the perfect transitional, therapeutic tool for any crisis center, doctor’s office, advocacy group, counseling session, etc.

According to Executive Director, Tricia Russell, “All survivors deserve to be supported, believed, and comforted no matter when their assault occurred. The iCare Kits allows us to do that.”

Notes of encouragement show survivors that someone cares about them.

The new iCare Kit contains more resources to help every survivor of sexual assault begin the healing process.

Fear 2 Freedom is excited to see April, not only because of its lovely Spring weather, but because it is Sexual Assault Awareness Month (SAAM).

This campaign is initiated by the National Sexual Violence Resource Center (NSVRC), an organization which provides educational materials for survivors of sexual assault, friends and family of survivors, advocates, educators, and the press.

We partnered with NSVRC this month to spread awareness and educate the public on topics of sexual assault as it relates to consent since this year’s SAAM theme is #iAsk.

Part of this partnership involves taking part in the #30DaysofSAAM social media event. During the month of April, we have posted content responding to open-ended prompts like “My Consent Checklist” in order to spread awareness about sexual assault.

Additionally this month, F2F launched the iCare Kits on college campuses as a way to build momentum and spread awareness. We hosted three Hour 2 Empower events across the state, visiting the University of Mary Washington, James Madison University, and Northern Virginia Community College.

F2F also participated in the community 5K “Walk in Their Shoes” where participants walked in other peoples’ shoes to raise awareness about sexual assault.

F2F is grateful for the opportunity to partner with NSVRC, universities, and other community groups and organizations that share our mission of ending sexual violence and empowering students to be the change.
EmpowerMEnt Story: Making an Impact

“F2F Aftercare Kits give our victims much needed materials and items to assist in their recovery. Often times these kits bring the first smile we have seen to the victim’s face. Having a clean outfit to put on and toiletries is extremely important to them and much appreciated, but the smile and tears always come when they pick up the teddy bear. This small token signifies that they are not alone and seems to give them hope for the future. Thank you, Fear 2 Freedom, for your work definitely makes a difference to victims of human trafficking.”
