DOLPHIN SIGHTINGS IN LE VILLAGE POOL

While dolphins are widely distributed, diverse, fully aquatic marine mammals that generally prefer tropical open waters, few are seen above sea-level. That all changed yesterday when four dolphins were sighted in the pool of Le Village engaging in a new advanced form of play. Marine biologist Dr. Hua D’hekesgonghan explained: “Dolphin play is common behavior, but we’ve never seen a species transport themselves to an above sea-level enclosure. Furthermore, this group was unusually gifted in intelligence, language and motor skills. They were observed vocally addressing each other as Lenie, Harry, Linnea, and Noah, while performing complex aquatic maneuvers, and could even exit the pool and walk.” Dr. Hua D’hekesgonghan shared his findings with the editorial board of Nature and was invited for a detailed debriefing and observation at an undisclosed institution.

Today’s arrivals include Michael & Marty Grote; Sid & Barbara Winawer; Joyce Kevelson; Meri Burnside; Andrew Kevelson; and Talia Andrei & Matthew Presseau. Welcome!

Tonight from 6 to 8 pm is the Meet & Greet Apéritif at Villa Catherine, Le Village Hotel, St. Jean.

The buzz for dinner tonight is 9:00 pm at Bagatelle Restaurant, Rue Samuel Fahlberg, Gustavia, St. Reservations: +590 590 27 51 51 or sbh@bistrotbagatelle.com. FODOR’S writes: “The sophisticated St. Tropez–inspired eatery, right on the harbor, is a scene-y place to watch big boats and enjoy pizzas (try the truffle one) and simple favorites like duck breast, steak, and local fish. You can book a table on the terrace, and cocktails are special and strong. Fans of sister establishments in New York’s Meatpacking District and Los Angeles will recognize the friendly service, lively atmosphere, and great music provided by resident DJs. Come late—the party and champagne get going after 11.”

Tomorrow’s arrivals include Danial Winawer, Heidrun & Konrad Wetzel. We can’t wait to see you!

If you’re intested in going sailing tomorrow morning, tell the TE times: taraanderik@taraanderik.com.

Have a great day!
