

Friends,

Over the past three Sundays, I have preached from passages of Scripture that use the ancient Greek word for “home.” This Sunday, we finally get to a passage in which Jesus was actually in someone’s home. In Luke 14:7-24, Jesus was at supper with some fairly prominent people. He observed their attempts to maneuver for the best seats, so he told a parable about choosing the least prominent seats in order to be invited into the more important ones.

When someone did not get the point, Jesus told them about a man who held a great banquet but was insulted by people who did not accept their invitations. In response, the man invited everyone he could find. Regardless of who wasn’t there, it was still a great banquet! As is often the case with parables, these can tell us just as much about how we view ourselves as they can about how we should understand God.

The Kingdom of God was often portrayed as a great banquet. While we might be concerned with our own places in it, we often miss the larger point of God’s abundant grace. As followers of Jesus, we are called to be more concerned with the latter and let Him take care of the former. Being part of the household of God means being reflective of His Kingdom. That is what we are called to be as individual disciples and as the church together.

On that note, the elders and deacons are about to begin a study series called “Flourishing Churches,” which leaders in many of our sister churches in ECO have used with great success. Please be in prayer for us as we learn more about being disciples and modeling discipleship so that we can all be fruitful ambassadors for the Kingdom of God.

I look forward to exploring this passage from Luke 14 with you more on Sunday, and to working with you as we grow in faith and discipleship! Have a good weekend, and I will see you soon!

In Christ,

Allen
