

Share access to clean energy.

WHAT THEY DO

Resonant Energy creates coalitions that empower people to plan, finance, and build clean energy projects and put communities in control of their own transition. They are committed to ensuring the transition to renewable energy puts economic and social justice at the center.

GOOD FOR MAJORS IN...

Community and Environmental Planning, Environmental Studies, Sociology, Business Administration

WHAT YOU COULD DO

- Generate interest for community solar through outreach to churches, nonprofits, and community members
- Input and manage data
- Research and attend relevant events in Boston

PERFECT IF YOU CARE ABOUT...

- Clean Energy
- Solar
- Environmental sustainability

"Solar within itself is a long process [...] but you can come across people who make it worthwhile. Elnora is an old lady who lives in Codman Square, Dorchester [...] and her excitement about our program was so uplifting. She was so excited about being able to get solar, while helping her community at the same time. Elnora became a part of our movement by spreading the word to everyone she knew. Helping an individual person, like Elnora, attain clean energy and then seeing them get so excited about it is a success within itself. Although the bigger goal of energy independence is a slow process, these small successes that make a difference in people's lives makes it all worth it and shows that the final goal is attainable."

Anna, University of New Hampshire '18
Community and Environmental Planning Major