when dinosaurs roamed the earth

dms summer session 2017

A long time ago, there was one large supercontinent called Pangaea. During week 1, learn what scientists believe caused Pangaea to separate and eventually form the seven continents we know today.

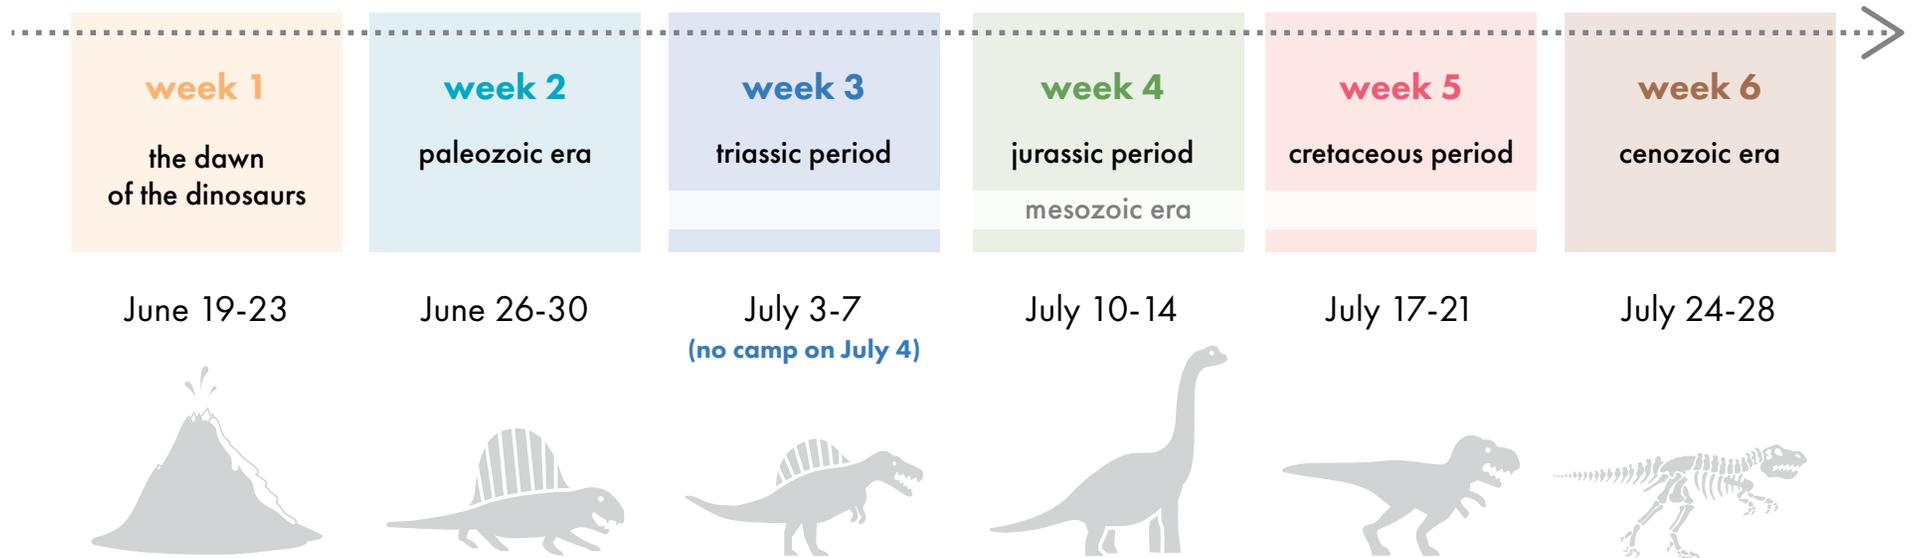

Next, during week 2, study the earliest reptiles that roamed the earth in the Paleozoic Era, many of which can still be seen today.

The first dinosaurs began to appear in the beginning of the Mesozoic Era, which is separated into three periods: the Triassic, the Jurassic, and the Cretaceous.

During weeks 3 to 5, delve into each of the three periods, and learn about the dinosaurs that were living in each.

Dinosaurs became extinct at the end of the Mesozoic Era, signaling the beginning of the Cenozoic Era (the age of mammals). See how paleontologists have been able to learn about the dinosaurs.

Make a volcano, learn about herbivores and carnivores, and, like paleontologists, carefully uncover hidden objects in the sand! And more!
