Working with Language Partners

What to do:

• Have a set time and place to meet your Language Partner, and be sure to arrive on time for each session.

• Give 24-hours notice if you have to miss a session (or as much notice as you can if there is an emergency). Make sure you have your partner’s cell phone number so you can text/call them if you are running late.

• Speak in Arabic – the WHOLE time.

• Plan and suggest new topics that you are interested in, and lead the conversation as much as you can.

• Feel free to ask questions about new words or how to say something, or about your Language Partner.

• Use dialect or MSA, or both – use what you are comfortable with. The goal of these sessions is to introduce a dialect and have you speaking more dialect as you continue working with your LP.

• Relax and enjoy your time. This is informal and is a chance for you to practice. Take risks, make mistakes, and try out new language.

What NOT to do:

• Don’t expect to be tutored or to do your homework – this is a time to practice your speaking / pronunciation skills, and not grammar. If you need help with grammar or a new class concept, please talk to your class instructor.

• Don’t miss sessions.

• Don’t speak in English.

• Don’t wait for your Language Partner to do all the talking and choose topics.

• Don’t spend your whole session asking question after question – “what does this word mean, what does that word mean, how do I say this, how do I say that.” This is counterproductive and does not allow for a conversation.

• Try to use the language you do know and don’t get discouraged by not knowing many words.

• Don’t stay quiet about a problem or issue with your Language Partner. If something comes up, talk to them, or talk to the Program Coordinator so that we can get it resolved.
Proficiency Testing

Proficiency testing is held annually in early October and is mandatory for all AFP students. These exams help you to track your own progress in the language, and will not affect your Arabic grades or Flagship participation. Students are assessed in all four skills - reading, listening, writing, and speaking. The reading and listening exams are taken online on a Saturday to ensure there are no course conflicts with the exam time. The date will be announced before the beginning of the fall semester, and students should plan to clear their schedule from morning through mid-afternoon.

Additionally, formal proficiency exams are required for all Capstone and Summer Overseas applicants. Both overseas programs and their admissions exams are administered by American Councils, our external partners. These exams are held in late January and the scores are an important component of a successful application. Capstone applicants should have an ILR 2/Advanced in all skills and Summer applicants should have ILR 1+/Intermediate High.

The chart below provides guidelines for expected test scores at each level of Arabic classes. Please keep in mind that each proficiency exam you take is just a snapshot of your abilities, and your progress is best viewed as an overall trend over time.

Funding and Scholarships

Arabic Flagship students in good standing with the program are eligible to receive merit based scholarships for summer study in Flagship approved programs and the Capstone year. Full terms and conditions of these awards are detailed in the scholarship offer letter, and must be agreed to and signed by the student before any scholarship funding is awarded.

Important Notes:

- Scholarship amounts are a maximum cap and not guaranteed. Final funding decisions are subject to approval from our federal sponsors. Students are expected to make every effort to apply for outside scholarships and grants in order to help fund their studies.

- Students must have a current FAFSA on file with the university in order to receive any funding.

- AFP funding is awarded on a “last dollar” basis and no student can receive scholarship funds over and above the cost of attendance for any program. This means that AFP funding will be awarded only after all other scholarships and grants (excluding loans and family contributions) are factored into account. It is essential that students update AFP staff with any changes to their financial aid package to ensure that AFP funding will not affect their other awards.

- The total amount of funding that a Flagship student can receive throughout their career is $20,000.

Scholarship Caps:

</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>$3,500</td>
<td>$7,000</td>
<td>$15,000</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Please note that these caps reflect a maximum award for each program, but the overall cap for cumulative funding remains $20,000 regardless of which programs a student participates in.

Other Opportunities

The Arabic Flagship Summer Overseas program is a two month long immersion program in Meknes, Morocco. Students take courses in Modern Standard Arabic, Arabic Media, and Moroccan Colloquial Arabic. AFP students are eligible to apply beginning the summer after their 3rd year of Arabic.

The UMD Summer Language Institute is an intensive domestic program that covers a full academic year’s worth of content in 10 weeks. Classes are offered at the 1st, 2nd, and 3rd year levels for Arabic. Competitive Summer Institute scholarships are available in addition to AFP funding.

The Critical Language Scholarship (CLS) is a fully funded summer program with locations in Jordan, Morocco, and Oman. Students are encouraged to work with the National Scholarships Office on campus to help craft a competitive application.
The Flagship Research Colloquium is held every year in late spring. Arabic and Persian Flagship students present their original research in both English and their target language to students, staff, and faculty of the university. Submissions are due in early February.

AFP internships offer students a chance to build their professional and language skills by working on outreach and recruitment, planning clubs and events, creating a student newsletter, and more. Interns earn a $500 stipend each semester and openings are announced in early fall and spring semesters.

The Global and Federal Semester Programs help place students into semester-long internships in the federal government or other globally minded organizations in the area. The two semester long program includes a fall seminar course and a spring internship for credit.

The Language House offers immersion living on campus for ten languages, including Arabic. Students live in clusters with other language students and an apartment mentor who pledge to use only Arabic at home. Other Language House activities include clubs, progressive snack, and other in-language apartment projects.
