Melody's character isn't simply limited to what she does in the sound booth - she pursues her passion of positively influencing the lives of others by helping children. In Hawaii, she runs a statewide non-profit called YES Hawaii. In 2015 she spent time in Jamaica and volunteered at the Jamaica National Children's Home (JNCH) sharing music, food, love, laughter and Christmas gifts with the children. In 2017, you can catch Melody performing live in Europe, Tahiti, and across the United States.

You could almost say that Melody doesn't just play reggae music - she lives and breathes a lifestyle. She performs annually at Wanderlust Yoga Festival at Turtle Bay on the North Shore and at the California Roots and Music Festival on the Monterey Fairgrounds. Melody also takes personal pleasure in performing at Art After Dark at the Honolulu Museum of Art and at the Honolulu Chinatown block parties. Most recently, she performed at two sold out shows in Tahiti. Her most current mixtape, "Sugarcane", was released in May 2016 after a Pacific Coast tour.
