EXFOLIATE

'Moisturising dead, damaged cells is futile,' says Dr Lancer. 'Skin can only absorb moisture once the debris is removed.' Omorovicza Copper Peel leaves the skin beautifully polished and plump. The make-up artist Kay Montano relies on Karin Herzog Mild Scrub to give her celebrity clients an enviable glow.

LAYER YOUR MOISTURE

The Asian approach – layering several light products – is superior to applying a single unctuous cream. 'Lotions' applied before serums add a micro-light layer of moisture infused with concentrated active ingredients. Try Clinique Even Better Essence Lotion and Estée Lauder Micro Essence Skin Activating Treatment Lotion.

INTENSIVE TREATMENTS

A MesoGlow with Dr Anne Mendelovici, from £350, gives skin an impressive immediate boost that lasts for at least two weeks. Intraceuticals Hyaluronic Facial, from £175, and the HydraFacial at Dr Rita Rakus, from £175, are the best facials for combating dehydration.

RICH BUT LIGHT

If you prefer the texture of a cream to serum or oils, try the latest effective treatment for dryness from Chanel: Hydra Beauty Nutrition. It's a pleasingly rich but light-textured cream.

MIX YOUR SERUM WITH OIL

Massage a mix of hyaluronic acid serum (Environ Focus Hydrating Serum, £66; Skinceuticals Hydrating B5 Gel, £59; or Dr Sebagh Serum Repair) and face oil (Rodin Olio Lusso or Sunday Riley Isis) into skin that is damp with lotion.

THE QUICK FIX

For those who work in air-conditioned offices, follow Sarah Chapman's advice and press a few drops of her Intense Hydrating Booster, £57, onto your face, even over make-up, for an instant boost of moisture. Bazaar's other new discovery is Melvita Plumping Radiance Duo; it combines pure organic rosewater with rose oil, which seals in hydration and leaves the skin looking dewy, rather than oily.

SATURATE WITH A MASK

'Occlusive cloth masks push moisture deeper into the skin than conventional cream masks,' says the dermatologist Dr Sam Bunting. I use them weekly, and immediately after long-haul flights or sun exposure. Dolce & Gabbana Aurelux Mask and Sarah Chapman 3D Moisture Infusion are excellent.
