

18th Workshop
of the PfP Consortium Study Group “Regional Stability in South East Europe”

“2009 – Bosnia’s Year?
The Challenge of Reaching Self-Sustainability in a Post-War Environment”

24-27 April 2009

Chateau Rothschild, Reichenau / Rax

Outline and Programme as of 17 March 2009

Purpose:

The Regional Stability in South East Europe Study Group seeks to assess the situation in the South East European region through enhanced international co-operation and strategic research on an academic level. The main focus is to elaborate major problem areas and work on possible solutions. The latest political developments in the region gave rise to the main topic of the 18th Workshop “2009 – Bosnia’s Year? The Challenge of Reaching Self-Sustainability in a Post-War Environment” to be convened at the Chateau Rothschild, Reichenau / Rax, Austria, 24-26 April 2008.

Topic:

Kosovo’s complicated status and post-status development has drawn the international actor’s attention away from the second very challenging area in the Western Balkans. Bosnia and Herzegovina in the last 13 years of the post-Dayton period has not become a functional state despite some successes that have been achieved in regard to the Euro-Atlantic integration processes. Continuing ethno-centric argumentation in the discourses of the local political leadership and partly dysfunctional state institutions have produced a standstill in the process of bringing Bosnia and Herzegovina nearer to “positive peace”. A political dialogue about the future of Bosnia and Herzegovina started by three national party leaders last year has been regarded with suspicion by the other political actors in this country. As a consequence of continuous antagonism and mistrust Bosnia and Herzegovina still seems to be far away from EU and NATO membership. The planned transformation of the international presence from a (de facto) protectorate power towards a presence supporting mainly Bosnia and Herzegovina’s integration into the EU is hindered. Alarmed by this critical situation EU representatives have declared 2009 of becoming “Bosnia’s Year”.

The upcoming workshop of the Study Group Regional Stability in South East Europe should focus on the necessities in terms of political, security and economic means to finally reach a breakthrough in Bosnia and Herzegovina that will lead to self-sustainability, EU and NATO membership.

The workshop will deal with

- 1) Political obstacles on the local level that prevent BaH becoming a functional state; identifying ways out of political stagnation (key words: political leadership, (dys)functional institutions, “successful” vs. “unsuccessful” entity, constitutional reform, ethno-centric policies vs. concept of civic state, local ownership, careful reforms or “new Dayton”)

- 2) Economic aspects of Bosnian state-(re)building (key words: necessities and obstacles for a common market in BaH, overcoming political antagonism through economic progress, corruption)
- 3) Security development (key words: defence and police reform, organized crime, religious radicalism/terrorism)
- 4) Regional factors of influence (key words: constructive or non-constructive role of the neighbours, regional frameworks and their influence on BaH)
- 5) The international role (key words: EU and NATO integration processes – still a carrot in Bosnian state-(re)building?; how to increase the efficiency of international presence – OHR/EUSR, EUFOR, EUPM, NATO?)
- 6) Psycho-emotional barriers and ways of dealing with them (key words: war traumas, reconciliation, justice, confidence-building)
