New budget airline has no claim to home advantage

Albert Cheng says a HK-tagged carrier should not have access to air rights here

A new budget airline airline has no claim to home advantage

Love of China's cash is a blot on book fair

Ma Jiaun faults the British Council for kowtowing to the survival of outide Chinese literature and promote the survival of our aviation industry.

Albert Cheng says a HK-tagged carrier should not have access to air rights here

A British Consul general in Hong Kong, China, has been in the city for 14 years. He has seen the city change, develop, and grow. And he has been a frequent visitor to China, where he has witnessed the rapid economic development and social progress. He has also been impressed by the country's rich cultural heritage and beautiful landscapes. In his opinion, China is a great country with a long history and a prosperous future.

The Consul says that China has made significant progress in recent years, particularly in terms of economic growth and technological advancements. He notes that China's global influence is increasing, and that the country is now playing a significant role in international affairs. He also highlights the importance of cultural exchange and cooperation, which he believes can help promote understanding and friendship between China and the rest of the world.

In conclusion, the Consul believes that China is a country that is on the rise, and that it is poised to become a leading economic and political power in the years to come. He encourages others to visit China and see for themselves the country's remarkable developments.