

HFA BOOT CAMP

(Otherwise known as Implementation Training)

What is it?

We think of Implementation Training like Boot Camp—but more fun! This is an opportunity to become intensely immersed in HFA, the expectations of the model, and the responsibilities of a HFA leader. It is also a great opportunity to network with National office staff and colleagues from around the country.

Who is it for?

Although especially great for program managers who are newer to their role, this training is also beneficial for any host agency leadership staff interested in learning more about implementation of the Healthy Families America model. So far, we have found great diversity in experience within our attendees, which has added to the value of networking and collaboration within the training.

"I truly appreciated the open format where people were allowed to ask questions according to their own needs and understanding"

Top Takeaways

- Network with other HFA leaders
- Hear stories and discuss common experiences with your peers
- Dive into the Best Practice Standards that drive the HFA model
- Ask any questions related to policies, procedures, data collection and accreditation
- Gain insights into continuing to provide quality programming to your community
