LOS ANGELES, CA, April 19, 2013 – New West Records is pleased to announce Steve Earle's new album, The Low Highway, is out now. The 12-track LP, his 15th overall and fourth studio album for New West, following his 2011 Grammy Award-nominated I'll Never Get Out Of This World Alive, has been garnering some of the best reviews of his career. To celebrate the album's release, Earle will hold in-stores at independent record stores where he will perform solo and acoustic. He will be at Music Millennium in Portland tonight, April 19 and at Twist & Shout in Denver tomorrow for Record Store Day. Earle and his band will perform on the "Late Show With David Letterman" this Monday, April 22.

Billed as "Steve Earle & The Dukes (& Duchesses)," The Low Highway features Earle's live band consisting of Chris Masterson & Eleanor Whitmore (of The Mastersons, who will open the shows), Kelley Looney, Will Rigby and Allison Moorer and was co-produced by Earle and Ray Kennedy. The album was awarded four stars by Mojo and The Guardian, a cover feature by Magnet Magazine and a riveting feature in the Wall Street Journal, which hailed him as "one of the most gifted and consistent singer-songwriters of the generation that followed Bob Dylan." American Songwriter exclaimed: "If you're listening to a Steve Earle album, you know you're going to get the truth. The good news is that this one is so powerful and varied that it will make those hard truths a little easier to bear even after the disc ends."

Ever the road warriors, Earle and his band will hit the highways and byways of North America to play these new songs influenced by life on the road, amongst heaps of other tunes from his catalog. The full routing is below.
