

The Tomorrow Prize

Short Science Fiction Writing Competition for Los Angeles County High School Students

The Tomorrow Prize Finalists, Honorable Mentions, story readers, judges, and organizers 2017.

Become a Tomorrow Prize Sponsor

The Tomorrow Prize for short science fiction by a Los Angeles County high school student inspires students to explore their present through speculating about their future and excel in the art of storytelling. Students from schools all across LA County submit their scifi stories to The Tomorrow Prize each year and celebrity guests read the finalists' stories before the winners are announced at LitFest Pasadena in May! This year's submissions are open October 2017-February 2018, and our sponsors are featured on our site and in our materials as we reach out to thousands of students, teachers, and community leaders. Join us in supporting our up-and-coming young writers and thinkers!

The Tomorrow Prize is presented by Light Bringer Project and Sci-Fest L.A.

Details at: <http://www.lightbringerproject.org/science-fiction-contests>

Sponsorship Opportunities

Octavia Butler: $1,500.00

- Logo on website and materials, and press release and blog mentions.
- Special recognition at the readings and awards, including on stage remarks.
- Seat on the Finalist Judging panel.

Ray Bradbury: $750.00

- Logo on website and materials.
- Special recognition at the reading and awards.
- Seat on the First Round Judging panel.

Ursula LeGuin: $250.00

- Logo on website and materials.
- Special recognition at the reading and awards.

Community Sponsor

- Community sponsors are local nonprofits, schools, businesses, civic associations, and other entities that would like to help us get out the word about submissions and the reading and awards event. They include the competition on an agreed to number of posts and blasts -- and/or other outlets for spreading the word to their lists.
- Community sponsor logos are placed on the website and materials.

Special Award Presenter

- Limited opportunities are available for sponsors to present special additional awards in the categories of environmental conservation, space exploration, philosophy/ethics, and social justice/human rights. Contact Director Rosalind Helfand if you are interested in presenting a special award.

 The Tomorrow Prize partners with companies and organizations that demonstrably share our vision for a just, equitable, and ecologically sustainable future.*

Contact Information: Rosalind Helfand, Director of The Tomorrow Prize: rozhelpand@gmail.com, 310-869-5749

The Tomorrow Prize is a program of 501(c)3 nonprofit Light Bringer Project: <http://www.lightbringerproject.org>