

Michelle Parke (Marketing & Communications)

Michelle Parke was born and raised in Central Kentucky and is a writer, blogger and mom to Matthew and Campbell. Campbell was diagnosed with Bohring-Opitz Syndrome after a ten year search for a diagnosis.

She has a degree in occupational therapy from Eastern Kentucky University, which has prepared her for having a child with complex medical needs. As an occupational therapist, she worked in acute care, outpatient rehab and home health. She assisted in developing the pulmonary rehabilitation program at Clark Regional Medical Center in Winchester, KY. Michelle has also worked as a Family Services Coordinator for Visually Impaired Preschool Services in Lexington, KY. She has been an advocate for children with special and complex medical needs and their families while serving on committees such as the Kentucky Early Intervention System Interagency Coordinating Council and numerous support groups. Her passion is educating parents and caregivers on caring for a child with complex needs, spreading awareness to the general public and medical community, identifying resources and providing emotional support. Michelle strives to offer hope and encouragement to those living with BOS and their families.
