Gallerist Adam Shopkorn picked the aptly named Meatpacking District for his new gallery/food court, Fort Gansevoort. Stop in the Greek Revival row house—once a hangout for Divine and Lady Bunny and site of the post-Area boite Rio Mar—to see an exhibition of large-scale abstract paintings by artist and saxophonist Dickie Landry (opening March 30), then grab a pulled-pork sandwich from the takeout BBQ window or sample Maayan Zilberman's birthstone-inspired sweets.
