Once a referral is received, our staff will meet with the parent/guardian to discuss services. We meet with families in their homes and communities and tailor our service to the needs of the family. We do advocacy for the family and teach them to advocate for themselves. We do skill building and connect families with needed services. Once a referral is received, our staff will meet with the parent/guardian to discuss services. Our staff generally meets with family at least twice a month but we do tailor the services in order to give the family the level of service they need when they need it. Because treatment is intensive, families will receive an average of 2 to 3 sessions weekly, and in-home therapists are available 24/7 to respond to crises.
