

GREENWICH REAL TIME

Greenwich's Luc Hardy' expedition, "On the Shoulders of Shackleton" stays stalled

By Anne W. Semmes on October 29, 2014 at 9:02 AM

0

UPDATE: Oct.27

Luc Hardy's nine member expedition have chosen the safe course – to sit on the their boat and wait for better weather to traverse the icy heights of South Georgia Island in order to trace the actual last gasp rescue trek of Sir Ernest Shackleton, that finally would lead to safety of Shackleton's 27-man crew.

Greenwich's Luc Hardy's nine-member crew as of Oct. 27 were on the Australis waiting still for better weather to traverse the heights of South Georgia Island.

This is how Hardy calls it as of his last report on his Pax Arctica Blog:

"We are still on the boat in Possession Bay right in front of the [South Georgia] glacier. It continues to be very windy (30-40 knots at sea level, gusting 50+) and it seems worst in altitude so we are waiting for now.

If the weather calms down a bit, we are ready to go up to our former camp and retrieve our equipment. If that is accomplished, our plan would be to leave early tomorrow morning Tuesday [Oct. 28] to resume our traverse of the island.

While the Hardy team waits they watch the fur seals. Here's a Hardy video link to a baby fur seal clapping: <https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=jl0ISLqVOc8&feature=youtu.be>

Sponsored Content

Our Economy Grew and Pollution Decreased
Paid Post on NYTimes.com

Powerful "Swift" Programming Language's Amazing Advantages
IBM Content

This Meal Service is Cheaper Than Your Grocery Store and Delivers to Your Door
Home Chef

What One Longevity Scientist Discovered About What We Need As We Age
Elysium Health on Fast Company

Sponsored Stories

- Visit the Chowder Capital of New England CT Visit
- Wall Street Poster Boy Makes Shocking Prediction The Sovereign Investor
- See Why So Many People in New York Are Wearing This Hoodie This Winter Business Insider
- Best Ever Thanksgiving Recipes Better Homes and Gardens
- Homeowners Must Claim their $4271 Before End of 2016 FetchRate
- 37 Most-Requested Thanksgiving Side Dishes Better Homes and Gardens
- Declassified Photos From History That Left Us Speechless the Professional

We Recommend

- I told conservatives to work for Donald Trump. One talk with his team changed my mind. Connecticut Post Opinion
- State Police: Ansonia man pointed gun on I-84 Police Reports - Connecticut Post
- Bridgeport cops suspect murder-suicide attempt in domestic shooting Police Reports - Connecticut Post
- Eaves caps Stars' 3-goal 1st period in win over Avalanche Connecticut Post Sports
- Cops: Man had hazardous fire pit in garage Police Reports - Connecticut Post
- Natural gas power plant wins zoning approval in Bridgeport Connecticut Post Business
- Wells Fargo employees on the front lines say they were so stressed, they were chugging hand sanitizer and having anxiety attacks Connecticut Post- Business Insider

Recommended by

