Ten years ago when my son Jonathan was stillborn, finding literature on the subject of infant loss was like trying to find a needle in a haystack. The hospital gave me a booklet for my then three-year-old and information on a local support group, but nothing for me. Thankfully, three of my friends who had previously suffered miscarriages sent me books on pregnancy loss that I could not read fast enough. I needed something or someone to validate my feelings and guide me through my grief. Once I finished those books I went on a quest looking for more. I ventured into local bookstores but could not muster the courage to ask the young sales clerks to help me find a book that dealt with stillbirth.

Even though 1995 was not that long ago, it was still a time when few homes had personal computers, and the average person did not know how to navigate the Internet. I certainly did not. As one of my “grief projects” I convinced my husband Byron that we needed to purchase a computer. Several months later a neighbor taught me how to log on to the Net and do research via the World Wide Web. I was too embarrassed to tell him what exactly I was looking for: help for my broken heart. Once I entered the highway of information, I could not believe all I found. Not only were books listed and recommended by fellow bereaved mommies, I also found message boards and Web sites that very much contributed to my emotional healing.

Now most households are equipped with home computers, and users range from toddlers to the very mature adult. All the information we could possible want or need is available at our fingertips in the privacy of our home. There is no longer the issue of embarrassment or feeling uncomfortable when asking a salesperson for certain resources. And best of all, the Internet doesn’t close. Some of the most desperate and heartfelt messages I receive from grieving moms are sent in the middle of the night. This is a signal to me that these women are hurting so badly they can not sleep and are turning to the Internet for help and comfort.

Music is another great source of comfort during grief. Many songs such as “Glory Baby,” by Watermark, Mercy Me’s “Homesick,” and Natalie Grant’s “Held” are just a few of many that greatly minister to hurting families. All three of these were inspired by the death of a baby and have climbed to the top of the Christian music charts.

Why do books and music help us through grief? It is because the words were written from the heartfelt emotions of authors who have walked in our shoes. Reading and hearing their thoughts let us know we are not alone. Someone else (although unseen) can relate to our pain, and we are encouraged with hope and assurance of survival. A wide variety of resources are listed on our Web site along with purchase information. I encourage you to take a look and invest in material that will soothe your hurt and comfort your heart.

Finally, remember as you’re looking for just the right resource to make things better, there’s really only One place where we can find all we need. Keep reading the Bible and seeking the Lord’s wisdom as you work toward healing. Our Father is the One who heals broken hearts. He has worked in the lives of those who have been able to pass along His comfort through those books, Web sites, and songs that help you now. He can do the same for you so that one day you, too, may become a resource for someone else in pain.
Where Real Help Comes From!

By Judy Blore, director of BASIS

I will lift up my eyes to the hills—where does my help come from? My help comes from the Lord, the maker of heaven and earth. Psalm 121:1

Where are you looking for help? Are you looking to the Internet? Local friends or family? Books? Other parents? You may get some great insight, advice and help from these. But any person, even those who know and love you best, can give you advice that’s based on false assumptions that make them like the false gods whose altars are built on the hillsops. Learn to discern. Look to agents of the true God.

As you look for help, do you sometimes cry out in despair like this writer?

My God, my God, why have you forsaken me? Why are you so far from saving me, so far from the words of my groaning? O my God, I cry out by day, but you do not answer, by night, and am not silent.

Yet you are enthroned as the Holy One; in you our fathers put their trust; they trusted and you delivered them.

My heart has turned to wax; it has melted away within me.

But you, O LORD, be not far off; O my Strength, come quickly to help me. Psalm 22:1-4, 14, 19

Have you felt this same degree of despair? Have you felt like your heart was melted like wax—just a puddle of emotion, not functioning? This psalmist said he had cried out to God for help but still felt completely overwhelmed. Yet he also knew the Lord was not far off. He reminded himself of God’s history with His people. God had been a faithful helper.

For he has not despised or disdained the suffering of the afflicted one; he has not hidden his face from him but has listened to his cry for help.

For dominion belongs to the LORD and he rules over the nations. Psalm 22:24, 28

I love these verses above. The Lord does not “dis” the pain—He doesn’t hate it nor minimize it. He knows. The psalmist is comforted as he reminds himself that God is in charge. Are you comforted to know that the God who loves you and gave up His Son for your redemption is in control of your present circumstances?

Next the writer trusts the Lord so comfortably that he freely and without restraint shares with the Lord all the things that burden him. Next is Psalm 55 and the New Testament version of the same advice.

Listen to my prayer, O God, do not ignore my plea: Hear me and answer me. My thoughts trouble me and I am distraught. My heart is in anguish within me; the terrors of death assail me. Fear and trembling have beset me; horror has overwhelmed me.

Cast your cares on the LORD and he will sustain you; he will never let the righteous fall. Psalm 55:2, 4, 5, 22

Cast all your anxiety on him because he cares for you. 1 Peter 5:6

This means pray and say everything—all the pain and distress and anguish.

This body of ours had no rest, but we were harassed at every turn—conflicts on the outside, fears within. But God, who comforts the downcast, comforted us by the coming of Titus, and not only by his coming but also by the comfort you had given him. He told us about your longing for me, your deep sorrow, your ardent concern for me, so that my joy was greater than ever. 1 Corinthians 7:5b—7

This comfort in this last passage is exactly what BASIS is: God, comforting His people, through His people. We long for you to know His presence. We do feel deep sorrow for and with you. We are concerned and pray for you regularly. We pray the last two lines below for you: when you are downcast you will remember the blessings He has given His people down through history and the blessings He has already given you.

My soul thirsts for God, for the living God. Where can I go and meet with God? My soul is downcast within me; therefore I will remember you. Psalm 42:2, 6

Your help truly comes from the Lord.

David James
born still July 19, 2005
Cord Accident

“Big D,” our son we called you
Ever active like your Pa
The brief moments that we held you close
It was pure beauty that we saw

You could have been a quarterback
A musician, or had a literary mind
Nonetheless we’d encourage you
To always listen, look, and find

A baby with no breath for life
An angel spirit was still born
A heavenly gift given, yet taken away
With sorrowful joy a boy was torn

Still you held our love together
When the strings were growing frail
Our son within the womb became
The chain that never fails

We are desperate in our grief now
And ask forgiveness for our pain
Always know you will be loved
Our precious baby, David James

Thank you, Little D.J., for your strength
And for all that you have done
To prepare our way to Jesus in heaven
Our first and unborn son

Happy birthday, Troy!
Seven years ago we met you! It feels like yesterday. You have continued to change our lives in so many wonderful ways. You have a new brother! We just adopted him this year from Zambia. As soon as he is old enough we will tell him all about you and show him your pictures. You are always remembered!

Love, Mommy and Daddy,
big sister Hannah, little sister Mia,
and new little brother Mo

Happy 1st Birthday, Miller!
Oh, how our arms long to hold and our hearts break to see you once again! Our time was cut short, but it was so very special. It will seem like an eternity until our togetherness in heaven is a reality, but rest assured that we believe you are with us every day.

Happy birthday in heaven, “Milly-D!”

God's Little Warrior

“Hey, little warrior,
How ya doing today?
Hey, little warrior,
We wonder what you'd say?
You've only been with God a while,
But, hey little warrior,
I bet you'd make us smile!
Hey, little warrior,
Hey, little warrior,
We miss you so,
Our baby Caleb, we wanted so badly to know,
Hey, little warrior
Hey, little warrior...
Why'd you go so soon?
I guess you're teaching Mommy and Daddy a thing or two,
Hey, little warrior
What it really meant when God said, ‘I love you’,
Hey, Hey little warrior....

By Rick & Julie Miller

When you went before us to heaven, you took a piece of all our hearts with you, sweet Caleb—that's why they "ache" so bad sometimes! We love you and miss you every day, and long to finally get to be with you again...some day.

Love,

Changes in Texas Affect Parents of Stillborn Children

A Texas Administrative Code has recently been changed concerning stillbirth. In the past, babies stillborn after 20 weeks gestation and/or weighing 500 grams (17.7 ounces) received a death certificate, and burial arrangements had to be made. Recently the weight has been changed to 350 grams (12.4 ounces). *This means that some stillborn babies around 18 or 19 weeks gestation may now receive death certificates.

The original text of the code follows:

Texas Administrative Code
Title 25 Health Services
Part I Department of State Health Services
Chapter 181 Vital Statistics
Rule 181.7 Fetal Demise (Stillbirth)

(a) A certificate of fetal death shall be filed for any fetus weighing 350 grams or more, or if the weight is unknown, a fetus aged 20 weeks or more as calculated from the start date of the last normal menstrual period to the date of delivery.

(b) A certificate of fetal death shall be considered properly filed:

(1) when all of the items thereon have been satisfactorily and definitely answered; and

(2) when the certificate has been presented for filing to the local registrar of the registration district in which the fetal death (stillbirth) occurred or the fetus was found. A certificate of fetal death (stillbirth) shall be filed with the local registrar within five days after the date of fetal death (stillbirth).

Source Note: The provisions of this §181.7 adopted to be effective January 1, 1976; amended to be effective July 3, 2003, 28 TexReg 4904; amended to be effective July 22, 2004, 29 TexReg 6936

Because hospitals have not been complying with this ruling, printing this information may create some difficult emotions among parents who were not given the opportunity to receive death certificates or arrange burials for their babies. Our intent is not to hurt parents who were not given this opportunity but to ensure that all Texas hospitals are complying with this code. If you believe your hospital is not in compliance with the new code, give them this information to benefit parents who will lose babies in the future.

More recent than this ruling was the bill that allows parents of stillborn babies in Texas to be issued birth certificates along with death certificates. The Texas MISSing Angels Bill was signed into law on June 9, 2005. Since September 1, parents of babies stillborn in Texas have been able to request a Certificate of Birth Resulting in Stillbirth, regardless of when the babies were born. Applications for these certificates are available at the following Web site:
http://www.dshs.state.tx.us/vs/field/stillbirth.shtm.

Statutes vary from state to state regarding the issuing of birth certificates for stillborn children, but a nationwide campaign to have these birth certificates issued has had positive results in several states. To see your state’s status, visit www.missingangelsbill.org

I Lost My Child Today

By Michelle McHone

Remembering Kassandra Voults

Cord Accident

I lost a child today, my friend
In case you didn't know
No one said a word to me
As it was all those years ago...

It's alright for you to mention her
It won't increase my pain
For someone to remember her
Means I don't grieve in vain

She was a living, breathing soul
She moved inside of me
We had long talks, she and I
Of what she'd like to be

Born a cold and gloomy day
Her body gray and still Doesn't mean I can forget her
Please know I never will

Treading lightly doesn't impact me
Being silent doesn't heal
I keep her in my heart each day
The pain, though old, I feel

So when this day rolls 'round again
A note, a hug, a call
Is all that it would really take Remembrance, still, yet small

I've spent these years in silence
Without her at my side
But today when no one mentioned her
Was the day, this year, I cried

Kasey’s Story

Kasey Lee Thomas was born July 2, 2004, at 4:31 p.m. He was absolutely beautiful! He had a ton of black hair and was just perfect. My doctor put him on my belly, and I watched him move and cry. My husband and I were overwhelmed with joy – he was finally here! His Apgar scores were normal – an 8 at one minute and a 9 at five minutes.

The nurses had Kasey in the warmer and were doing all the routine checks on him. Then all of a sudden Kasey became unstable, blood pressure dropping and the nurses having to bag him. He was rushed out of the room. We never heard him cry again.

The doctor told us that Kasey had a subgaleal hemorrhage (a bleed in the head between the scalp and skull) and was in critical condition. An immediate blood transfusion was needed, and Kasey would be transferred to Children’s Hospital.

They brought Kasey to our room so our family and my husband and I could see him before he was transported to the other hospital. My husband and I each held him for a split second, and then he was taken away. Kasey was not moving, and there was no reaction from him. What was happening? We had just given birth, and our son was supposed to be healthy!

My husband went with Kasey, and I had to stay behind. It was awful – the longest night of our lives! I was released the next morning and went straight to Children’s Hospital. I remember seeing Kasey when I got there and almost fell to the floor. His poor little head was so big that the tops of his ears were folded forward. His forehead and sides of his face were purple from all the bruising. Kasey was just a little baby. Why was this happening to him?

Kasey was a little fighter and went through endless tests, procedures, and surgeries. He had brain damage as well as damage to the kidneys and liver, due to the loss of blood. In the end, Kasey had 45 blood transfusions on top of everything else. He surprised the doctors by how he fought and hung on. We prayed for a miracle.

On Sunday, July 25, 2004, we arrived at the NICU early, like we did every morning. The doctors met us to tell us they thought Kasey was in DIC, which meant he was clotting where he should not, but not clotting where he should. They were waiting on test results. If the results came back positive, there was nothing more they could do. They could continue to give him transfusions, but it would ultimately prolong his death, causing him to bleed to death internally. Those minutes were so long, just waiting. The test came back that he was in DIC. We were devastated - the word is so inadequate to describe our feelings. How could this happen to our perfect baby boy? He struggled for so long, just fighting to be given a chance. It was not fair! He never got to come home, wear clothes, have a birthday, play with his big brother; we never got to change his diaper.

As heart-wrenching as it was, we decided we had to let him go. We spent the next several hours just talking to him and touching him. We tried to soak up everything about him – every toe, finger, his smell …

When we were ready and with him at his bedside he was taken off his life support. I was holding him when they took him off the machines and unhooked all of the tubes. I was finally holding my baby without all of those things. It just was not right that finally holding him this way meant the end. My husband carried Kasey out of the NICU and to a room where our family was waiting. Everyone was able to say goodbye to our beautiful baby. After only 23 days, our perfect baby boy went to be with the angels. To this day it all seems so unbelievable.

The weeks and months that followed are all a blur. If it had not been for the overwhelming support of family, friends and co-workers, we would not have made it.

We had to find a way to function. After all, we had a five-year-old boy at home who was heartbroken and needed us. My husband and I both eventually went back to work. We were supposed to go back with wonderful pictures and cute baby stories of night-time feedings. Instead we were in a daze, going back to work as if our lives were the same as before Kasey was born. I will never forget the looks on peoples’ faces. It was awful. Those looks and the silence – no one knew what to say. You could tell people were afraid to say Kasey’s name. So, I would break the silence and say his name. I wanted to talk about every minute of his precious life. I wanted people to hear about my son, even though he was so tiny and fragile. I wanted them to know how brave and strong he was. My husband and I are proud to be his parents!

I think we gained strength along the way listening to stories from our family and friends of how Kasey had changed their lives forever. When Kasey passed away we could not make any sense of it. I had always believed “that everything happens for a reason” but could not believe that now. What reason could anyone ever give us to justify Kasey’s death? But, in hearing everyone’s thoughts and feelings we slowly began to see why Kasey was put on this earth, even for a short time. He impacted more people in his 23 days of life than most people will in a lifetime.

My husband and I said leaving the hospital after Kasey’s death that we would not have any more kids. Over time we changed our minds. We knew in our hearts that Kasey would want us to be happy. So, in December we decided to try again. What a scary decision! Would we get pregnant again? Would everything be okay? Could we handle it emotionally?

By the end of the month, I decided to take a pregnancy test. It was early, but my mind was driving me crazy! We did not think it was possible to be pregnant yet, because I was having problems with my cycle. Everyone said it was due to stress. I even went to the family doctor over some stomach issue and was told it was stress-related. However, the pregnancy test was positive! We were shocked! Another blood test was rushed and it was confirmed that we were pregnant. My doctor wanted to see me right away to do an ultrasound. It turned out I was 14 weeks pregnant! We could not believe that after all the doctor’s appointments I had been pregnant the whole time.

Our beautiful – and healthy – baby boy, Corey Lee Thomas, was born June 27, 2005. We were amazed how perfect and healthy he was. The pregnancy was an emotional roller coaster, and we felt like we would fall off every second of the way, but in the end it was worth it.

Corey will never take Kasey’s place, but he sure has helped us tremendously. When he gets older he will hear how he helped save our lives, in more ways than one.

We know our beautiful angel Kasey is watching over us and is with us every day. It’s almost like Kasey had a part in sending Corey to us, even when we didn’t realize we were ready.

Our precious Kasey … once again changing our lives and impacting so many people. What an awesome and inspiring soul to everyone. One can only hope to inspire and be the person he was, even if it was only for 23 days.

Written in loving memory of Kasey Lee Thomas by Mommy, Daddy (Tracy and Kelly Thomas), big brother Riley and little brother Corey. We love you, Kasey, and can’t wait to hold you in heaven.

According to a study released in the November 2004 issue of The Journal of the American Medical Association, a blood test performed on pregnant women during their first trimester could predict risk for stillbirth.

The study, led by Dr. Gordon Smith of Cambridge University, examined nearly 8000 Scottish women who underwent blood tests during their first ten weeks of pregnancy. The tests determined the levels of protein, known as pregnancy-associated plasma protein A (PAPP-A). Of the 400 women with the lowest levels of PAPP-A, eight later had placenta-related stillbirths, compared with 17 stillbirths among the other 7,534 other women in the study. Researchers determined that women in the group with the lowest PAPP-A levels (the lowest fifth of the total study) were 40 times more at-risk for stillbirth due to placenta dysfunction.

Findings suggest that doctors may be able to better target women at risk for certain kinds of stillbirth by testing PAPP-A levels in early pregnancy. This information could be used to monitor high-risk pregnancies more closely in hopes of ensuring fetal growth and preventing stillbirth due to placenta dysfunction.

Tax Deductions Available to Some Parents

It is difficult to think about financial issues after the loss of a child. I had a tax professor while I was in college who lost his wife during the semester. He was out on leave for a couple of weeks but returned to finish the semester. The day he returned all of us were on pins and needles, not sure what to say or how to act. He stood up in front of the class and said, "There are only two things in this life that are certain: death and taxes. So let's get on with it." He was just trying to set us all at ease. However, he made a point that has always stuck with me. In light of that, I wanted to share some information that is valuable for those of you who have lost a child in 2005.

Some of you may have lost a child who only lived for a short time. If so, you are still eligible to claim a dependency exemption on your tax return, even if your child only lived for a moment, as long as you have proof of a live birth shown by an official document such as a birth certificate. This exemption can potentially save you hundreds of dollars in taxes and perhaps help defray funeral and burial costs.

Unfortunately, there is no such exemption for a child who was stillborn (as mine was).

If you have any questions or need specific advice or information that is unique to your situation, please feel free to contact me at kpwait@comcast.net.

Tis good—the looking back on Grief—
To re-endure a Day—
We thought the Mighty Funeral—
Of All Conceived Joy—
To recollect how Busy Grass
Did meddle—one by one—
Till all the Grief with Summer—waved
And none could see the stone.
And though the Woe you have Today
Be larger—As the Sea
Exceeds its Unremembered Drop—
They're Water—equally—

Words from New M.E.N.D. Chapters Directors

The northwest Arkansas chapter of M.E.N.D. officially opened on March 1, 2005, with seventeen moms and dads in attendance. Since our first meeting, we have had steady and regular attendance by several of our families. A subsequent pregnancy group began during the summer months. In the spring, founder Rebekah Mitchell, board member Pam Morren and I traveled to Little Rock to meet with state legislators to explore funding opportunities for the new chapter. It has been a blessing to meet moms and dads in northwest Arkansas who have endured the heartache of losing one or more precious babies.

April L. Moreton, Ph.D.
Northwest Arkansas Chapter Director

The M.E.N.D. Kansas chapter started on May 12 in Emporia. We’ve been able to meet at Cora Miller Hall/Newman Division of Nursing, and it’s turned out to be a great location. Our local newspaper recently published an article to promote M.E.N.D. in the area, and response to the article increased attendance. I feel incredibly blessed to be leading this group and look forward to what the Lord has planned for us.

Stephanie Metzger
Kansas Chapter Director

Since opening the Houston chapter in May, God has brought together eleven families to share memories of their precious babies. God has blessed this group with a subsequent pregnancy, two adoptions, and a foster newborn. My specific prayer for this group has been that God be in charge of this ministry; to bring glory to Himself as He mends the hearts of His children.

M.E.N.D. was invited to help the clergy staff at one of Houston’s largest hospitals implement an infant bereavement program and hospital policy.

Jamie Crump
Houston Chapter Director

After our three-week-old daughter, Michelle, died from a heart defect in 2002, the bitterness in my heart threatened to overtake me. I desperately clung to the promise that one day God would restore my life again. Three years later, I am even more aware that God’s promises are true. He never gives us more than we can bear, He is always there for us, and He does restore broken lives.

I am thankful He has allowed me and my wonderful helpers, Jill and Tammy, to open a chapter of M.E.N.D. in Atlanta. We held our first meeting October 10, 2005, and had eleven in attendance. It is my prayer God will use our chapter to give hope and support to grieving families, and through His power, we will see many lives restored.

Marie Stockdale
Georgia Chapter Director

M.E.N.D. Support Group Meetings
Join us for a time of sharing experiences.

M.E.N.D. main chapter meetings are held the 2nd Thursday of every month from 7:30 – 9:00 p.m.

Our Daddies group meets the 2nd Thursday of March, June, September, and December from 7:30 – 9:00 p.m. This is a special time for daddies to get together and discuss concerns unique to them as fathers. Our moms and dads meet together for introductions before dividing into two groups for discussion.

Subsequent pregnancy group meets the 4th Tuesday of each month from 7:30 - 9:00 p.m.
For families who are considering becoming pregnant or are currently pregnant after a loss. Led by Lori DeLaTorre (lori@inyourfaceshirts.com).

Playgroup
For families with children born prior to or subsequent to a loss. Contact DaLana Barsanti at (817) 589-0588 fivekids@ev1.net
(Playgroups meet at various locations around the Dallas/Fort Worth Metroplex.)
M.E.N.D. Fundraisers

As a non-profit organization, M.E.N.D. is funded solely by private donations and fundraisers. Any assistance you can give us by participating in any or all of these fundraisers is greatly appreciated.

Kroger grocery stores donate a percentage of all purchases of those shoppers who have and use a Kroger Share Card back to M.E.N.D. To obtain your Share Card, contact Rebekah (Rebekah@mend.org) and let her know how many you need.

Tom Thumb also has a program in Texas that can benefit M.E.N.D. If you have a Tom Thumb Reward Card, please ask your Tom Thumb cashier to link your card with M.E.N.D. Our number is 6265. Reward cards can also be used at Randalls and Simon David stores.

Shannon Outen, a M.E.N.D. member, operates Oh! For Keepsakes, which offers photographic keepsakes and quilts. For every order that is placed in which the purchaser mentions M.E.N.D., Shannon will donate $2 to M.E.N.D. Visit her business at www.ohforkeepsakes.com.

Glenn Martin is looking for M.E.N.D. families willing to grant space for small gumball machines in order to raise funds for M.E.N.D. If you have a retail business or connections to a high traffic location, Glenn will place, stock, and service the equipment and give M.E.N.D. 35 percent of the proceeds. His business has most of its route in the Grapevine and Southlake areas and could travel further into the Dallas/Fort Worth metroplex for a high traffic location. Glenn can be contacted at (817) 874-5366 or glmartin@attg.net.

M.E.N.D. can now earn funds through i.think inc., an online marketing research firm. You can help by signing up as a survey panel member and designating us as the recipient of your fee. Every time you complete a survey M.E.N.D. will be automatically credited. Go to the website at http://www.ithink.inc.com and choose “Sign up to become an i.think inc. panel member.” Fill out the sign-up survey. Under the “Funds for Charity” section, select M.E.N.D. from the list of names. Once you have completed the sign-up survey, including a valid email address, you’ll be contacted with an Internet address and password for specific surveys for you to take part in. At the end of the survey, press the “Submit” button, and M.E.N.D. will be automatically credited as the recipient of all money you have earned.

Bob Nordberg is owner of www.buildatee.com in San Antonio. BuildATee.com is dedicated to providing customers with quality customized shirts, ballcaps, athletic wear, and gift items. Ten percent of online sales at BuildATee.com will be donated to M.E.N.D.

Little Beads & Macaroni & Cheese, owned by M.E.N.D. member Marilyn Brown, offers custom jewelry. Her keepsake angel bracelets are $20 each, and ten percent of each angel bracelet sale will be donated to M.E.N.D. Marilyn can be reached at 817/996-1920 or mbsbrown16@hotmail.com.

Tiffany Chalk is a consultant with Arbonne International, offering pure Swiss skin care, color, nutrition and aromatherapy. Tiffany will donate twenty percent of all sales by M.E.N.D. members back to M.E.N.D. To find out more, call 302-658-3775 or visit www.arbonne.com. Use Tiffany’s consultant ID #15111516 to shop online. Tiffany can also be reached at gr8skin@hotmail.com.

IBM employees may now make charitable donations to M.E.N.D. through automatic payroll deductions. Choose Charity Code 0M562 from the IBM Employee/Retiree Approved Charity List.
