Joy in Suffering

We wear our smile, as we try to hide the grief we are feeling deep inside.

“Are you okay?”
We hope they don’t ask, because a shaky “I’m fine” will never mask.

Tears might begin to fall
An embrace might happen
Requests for answers
Our spirits would dampen.

So on our face a smile we paint, and try to enjoy each event. While we never forget our someone who was heaven sent.

How many of us jump up and down with excitement to celebrate suffering? Probably no one! Yet James, the brother of Jesus, opens his encouraging words to fellow Christians by saying, “Consider it pure joy, my brothers, whenever you face trials of many kinds, because you know that the testing of our faith develops perseverance” (James 1:2-3).

When my baby Jonathan was stillborn, I had an insatiable desire to scour the Bible for answers. I was angry at God, I felt betrayed by the One who I thought would bring my baby safely into this world, and I was very spiritually confused. Yet I knew my only true, lasting help would come from Him and Him alone, so I studied the Word like never before. I remembered a popular Christian song when I was a young girl based on this scripture. I knew all the words by heart and often sang along when I heard it on the radio. I recited the scriptural lyrics many times as a teenager without ever thinking about what I was saying. When these words came back to me as a grieving adult, I thought, wait…I must not remember them correctly. Surely, it’s not right: “consider it pure joy when facing trials...”? Yes, that is what James indeed said! Thinking of another scripture on suffering, I flipped back to Romans 5 where Paul says in verse 3 to rejoice in our suffering! Are they crazy? Or am I just completely a wimp? Admittedly, during my dark days of grieving, these passages made me mad.

As the days, weeks and months wore on, and I continued to seek God’s Word for comfort and hope, I stumbled across another scripture I had known as a child but didn’t think much of until I needed it: “Do not grieve, for the joy of the Lord is your strength” (Nehemiah 8:10). Now I know Nehemiah wasn’t instructing moms whose babies just died to be happy. But he was telling this to a large group of God’s people who had been in captivity and were trying to rebuild their lives. They were down, discouraged and devastated.

Nehemiah was giving them a pep talk. He didn’t say get over it, and just be glad for what you do have. No, he acknowledged their current situation and basically told them your pleasure and happiness in the Lord is what will get you through this very tough season. I pondered this and realized I was very much like those Israelites. I had just experienced a horrendous sentence of living the rest of my life without my baby. I was trying to rebuild my life, but I was struggling terribly.

Over time, I decided I was going to make an effort to be happier. I resolved I would never have the answers to why my baby died, and I needed to make a choice of either living in a constant state of sorrow or try to muster a smile, a laugh and discover the good in the bad. Do I consider it joy when I face sufferings? Well…maybe not immediately, but I like to think I do eventually. Truly, I see that the sorrows I’ve endured have definitely developed perseverance within me. And that perseverance has molded my character into who I am today. And that new me is ever so full of blessed assurance (Romans 5:3-4) that I will without a doubt see my babies again one day.

As the holidays evoke a myriad of emotions when we’re missing loved ones who we want here with us, we have a choice to make. We can choose misery, destruction and ruin. Or we can decide to be happy despite our sorrow and allow the Lord to fill us with the capability to get us through tough times. As we say goodbye to 2019 and enter into a new decade, I challenge all of us to focus on the beauty and the blessings of our suffering, despite the sorrow. Let’s choose joy.
Happy 3rd Birthday, Blakeleigh!
Oh to be 3, Blakeleigh! Happy 3rd heavenly birthday, our sweet daughter! Dad and I envision daily what it would be like having you earthbound with us: playing and teaching your little sister new things, riding your bike on our family walks, and just being such an amazing soul! I hope Gammy is making you her famous chocolate cake for your birthday. One day we will hold you again and never let go. We love you to heaven and back, our sweet angel.

We love you,
Mommy, Daddy, Brielynn and Chelokee

Happy 4th Birthday, Baby Clyde!
Happy birthday, sweet child of mine. Four years ago, you came into this world to change my life. You should be going to Pre-K by now. Oh, how fun it would have been to take you to your first day of class. To get all your first drawings, projects and photos. Bittersweet desire. On this day, I celebrate your birth. I thank God for giving me you, one of my greatest gifts. Because of you, my heart beats true. Happy 4th birthday! Mommy loves you so much, mi hijito lindo! Feliz cumpleanos! Hermoso de mama. Happy 1st Birthday, Nevaeh Raye Driggars!
Happy 1st heavenly birthday to our beautiful angel baby! Not one second of our day goes by you’re not thought about, for you are so loved. I loved you before I met you and even more after giving birth to you. I know you’re having a blast in heaven: no pain, no suffering, no sadness. Just peaceful bliss. Today we will celebrate your 1st birthday in remembrance of you and the joy you brought Daddy and Mommy. We can’t wait until the day we join you and hold you in our arms! We love and miss you beyond measure.

To our baby boy, your 4th birthday is here! It’s hard to believe time is moving fast, but slow at the same time. We think about you nonstop, and I wish I could hear and see you playing with your sisters. We will celebrate your birthday and visit your resting place. I think about your smell, remember your snuggles on my chest, and close my eyes to listen to your gurgles. You are always loved and always thought about. We miss you so very much. Happy 10th Birthday, Serenity!
Oh, Serenity, 10 years! I don’t feel ready for this. I just cannot fathom how 10 years have passed since we first learned of you, shared you with our world and then you went just as quickly to heaven.

While I hated we went through it, God has taught me so much since your death, a love deeper than I have ever known, all through His Grace and His Sacrifice. Thank you, for being you, Serenity. While you were only here with me briefly, your short, beautiful life on earth impacts me daily.

You will always be my blessing. The joy in my soul that people will only get a glimpse of, but never see its entirety until we get to heaven.

The Special Garden
Written by Carah Hicks
Mommy to Brian Earls

There is a special garden,
where beautiful children play.

This is no ordinary garden,
it’s very far away.

No one falls and scrapes their knee,
or even cries a word.

The only sound is their laughter and the angels’ chorus is heard.

These are very special children,
too beautiful for earth.

Some were blessed to be at the garden
even before their birth.

Others came and stayed a while,
until God called them home.

They flew up there on angels’ wings,
what a site to be shown!

As Mommies and Daddies hearts they ache,
Jesus promised and He makes no mistake.

One day we will hold our most precious gems,
but until then, just play, until we see you again.

In the rising of the sun and its going down,
WE REMEMBER THEM.

In the blowing of the wind and in the chill of winter,
WE REMEMBER THEM.

In the opening of the buds and in the rebirth of spring,
WE REMEMBER THEM.

In the blueness of the skies
and in the warmth of the summer,
WE REMEMBER THEM.

At the rustling of the leaves
and in the beauty of autumn,
WE REMEMBER THEM.

At the beginning of the year and when it ends,
WE REMEMBER THEM.

When we are lost and sick at heart,
WE REMEMBER THEM.

When we have joys we yearn to share,
WE REMEMBER THEM.

As long as we live, they too shall live,
For they are now a part of us.
WE REMEMBER THEM.

MAY YOU FIND JOY IN THE SEASON.
MAY YOU FIND PEACE IN ITS REASON.
MAY YOU FIND HOPE IN THE HOLIDAYS!
In Loving Memory

Thank YOU for your support

It was a beautiful, sunny afternoon on Saturday, October 5, as more than 1,200 people attended the 23rd Annual Walk to Remember in Irving, Texas, remembering 322 babies. While waiting for the Walk to begin, families were able to participate in our large raffle, visit the Memory Tables where parents displayed pictures and mementos of their babies, shop in the M.E.N.D. store to purchase t-shirts, create remembrance items at our craft stations and enjoy a bite to eat from the food trucks. The author of “Joy in Suffering,” Rosemary Pope, served as the inspirational speaker. She shared her heartbreaking journey of losing three babies, and deciding to choose joy in the midst of her suffering.

We are beyond grateful to our numerous sponsors who donated items for our raffle, as well as monetarily, which enables us to keep this unforgettable ceremony free of charge. Thank you from the bottom of our hearts!

At our 14th Annual Walk to Remember for the Greater Houston Area, we remembered more than 230 babies with approximately 800 parents, family members and friends in attendance. Worship Pastor and fellow loss mom, Rebekah El-Hakam, mommy of Mary-Linda, shared her gift of music and the song she wrote about the loss of her daughter. Jennifer Perez shared her heart and her story of God’s hope and love after the diagnosis of “incompatible with life” and subsequent death of her daughter, Hannah. This year, our event was a little different as we released doves to fly away as symbolism of our babies’ souls flying to heaven to be with Jesus. This poem was read before the release of the doves:

From the beginning of time, white doves have been a beautiful symbol of hope, love, peace and the soul . . . the very essence of why we have gathered here today.

As we cherish the precious memories of our little angels, we also feel the profound sorrow of their absence.

In remembrance of them, we will release a snow white dove in a symbolic tribute to their tiny spirits, for we know that they are truly here today with us in spirit and forever within our hearts.

We will release a flock of white doves symbolizing the love we send to them.

As the doves join together in winged flight, our loved ones will soar throughout eternity surrounded by our love . . . until we meet again . . . for love transcends the boundaries of Heaven and of Earth.

As the doves soar over the horizon and far above the clouds, it is our hope that you will reflect upon how your special little loved ones touched your life, and you will send with them your sweetest memories, your prayers and your love.

It is said that if you whisper to a dove, she will carry your message to Heaven.

We wish, that as you experience this beautiful moment in time, your heart and your spirit will be lifted up, and you will forever know the hope, the peace, and the love embodied by the doves. May God hold you in the palm of His hand . . .

Today, tomorrow, and always.

“Oh, that I had wings like a dove. For I would fly away and be at rest.”
Psalm 55:6

Count It All Joy

Written by LaTrina Bray
Mommy to Kimani, Jeremiah and Laila
M.E.N.D. - Columbus, Ohio Chapter Director

Count it All Joy
Please, tell me how
So many mountains and valleys
Since that day until now

Heart gripped by sorrow
Will it ever let go?
Emotions are raging
Baby shower – Uh, I think NO!

Down a deep and dark hole
My way out – will I find?
On my tear-stained pillow
Am I losing my mind?

Fall colors, Winter snow
Days shorter, longer nights
Enveloped by this darkness
Wait! I see a Light!

As I share my truth
A smile appears on my face
Now, how did that happen
By experience...Amazing Grace

To peace from confusion and anger
Never thought I could
Pain is now Purpose
Since I talked to my Friend

Joy in suffering
Not a fairytale or a dream
Just Truth plus expectation
And someday...reality

My heart beholds a reunion
With our two girls and baby boy
You see my HOPE is in Jesus
That’s how I can Count it All Joy!

SW Missouri Butterfly Release & Wave of Light

We gathered together for two beautiful ceremonies to honor our babies in heaven: once in September for the Butterfly Release and again in October for the Wave of Light event. Our Butterfly Release was a casual, but meaningful time of fellowship and remembrance of our babies. Our 3rd annual Wave of Light event was co-hosted with Cox Labor and Delivery nurses and On Angels’ Wings. It was another significant way we remembered our babies. With both ceremonies we were able to join with other moms and dads, have our babies’ names read aloud and offer support and comfort to each other.

Bryan/College Station Walk of Remembrance

I WILL STOP missing you when I AM WITH YOU
Joy to Sorrow – Will It Ever Be “Joy” Again?

Susan Adams, PhD, LPC, BC-NCC
“Providing Guidance Through Life’s Storms”
www.drsusanadams.com

No matter how deep the grief or how great the pain, remember you are not walking along through life alone. Others have traveled this road before you and can help you through this difficult time. How do others live with joy even when life is challenging, or plans are shattered?

The ultimate ending of life and meeting Jesus takes all our sorrow and transforms it into joy. God created you to be filled with strength, peace, and joy. We get a glimpse of this through God’s promises found in His Word. Parents need to acknowledge the precious life of their baby. How do you do that? Good question. Certainly, it does not happen overnight. It’s called “grief work” and the “grieving process” for a reason.

Through God’s love and gentle embrace, we are empowered to find a way through our sorrow. Each of us will travel down a different path, but the Lord will certainly walk every step with us. Our Heavenly Father knows the depth of our sorrow when our loved ones die (e.g., baby, parent, family member, friend, etc.). He gave His only Son to die for each of us so that our sins could be forgiven forever.

Here are some helpful, but simple tips for the holidays:

• Let your body and heart be your guide. The death of a loved one, no matter the age or circumstances, causes a deep wound in our hearts. Our bodies just cannot find the energy to do the things we normally do.
• If you are the one that prepares food for your family (however, you define “family”), but you do not feel up to the task this year, don’t do it! Let others prepare food or buy the holiday fixings. Everyone will be just as full even though they might miss their favorite dishes.
• After everyone is full, they won’t want to “move” anyway – so have a special time of “being thankful” around your Thanksgiving dinner table. Many of my clients tell me that there is nothing to be thankful for this year. However, can you find some positive things to be thankful for? What about the fact that your baby is now running and jumping in heaven? If your baby lived for a short period of time, can you focus on some of those special memories? Can you be thankful for friends, family, and your personal support group? They will not completely understand what you are going through, but then no one else can truly understand that. It is your grief and you can “own” that.
• For Christmas, send gift cards as presents this year instead of attempting to function well enough to buy presents. It will also eliminate the need to wrap them.
• Hang a special ornament on your Christmas tree to remember your baby (or family member). For some, you might want to put a stuffed animal under the tree to “watch over” the celebration of Jesus’ birth. I had one client who bought an angel beanie baby that said, “Baby’s First Christmas” and bought a sleigh for the angel. I had another one that went to the Build A Bear store and bought a teddy bear. There were three hearts put inside the teddy bear. Why three? One for the baby, one for Mom and one for Dad. She put the bear in her rocking chair that she got for her first Christmas. Be creative and think of something special that will bring joy to your heart – even though you have tears in your eyes.
• Do not be afraid to seek personal counseling to help you deal with your pain and sorrow. It is the healing of the heart that gives you a new awareness of life again.

Jamie Anderson wrote: “Grief, I’ve learned is really just love. It’s all the love you want to give but cannot. All that unspent love gathers up in the corners of your eyes, the lump in your throat, and in that hollow part of your chest. Grief is just love with no place to go.” (lessonslearnedinlife.com)
Alegría en el sufrimiento

Artículo de Presidente y Fundadora,
Rebekah Mitchell,
Mamá de Jonathan Daniel y bebé Mitchell

¿Cuántos de nosotros saltamos de emoción para celebrar el sufrimiento? ¡Probablemente nadie! Sin embargo, James, el hermano de Jesús, comienza sus palabras de apoyo a los demás cristianos al decir: “Considéralo pura alegría, mis hermanos, cada vez que enfrentan pruebas de todo tipo, porque saben que la prueba de nuestra fe desarrolla perseverancia” (Santiago 1 : 2-3).

Cuando mi bebé Jonathan nació sin vida, tuve un deseo insaciable de buscar respuestas en la Biblia. Estaba enojada con Dios, me sentí traicionada por Aquel que pensé que traería a mi bebé a salvo a este mundo, y estaba muy espiritualmente confundida. Sin embargo, sabía que mi única ayuda verdadera y duradera vendría de Él y de Él solo, así que estudié la Palabra como nunca antes. Recordé una canción cristiana popular cuando era una niña basada en esta escritura. Sabía todas las palabras de memoria y con frecuencia cantaba cuando la escuchaba en la radio. Recité las letras de las Escrituras muchas veces cuando era adolescente sin pensar en las palabras. Cuando estas palabras volvieron a mí, una adulta afligida, pensé, .. No debo recordarlas correctamente. Seguramente, no están correctas.. “¿hay que considerarlo pura alegría cuando se enfrentan las pruebas ...”? ¡Sí, eso es lo que James dijo! Pensando en otra escritura sobre el sufrimiento, volví a Romanos 5, donde Pablo dice en el versículo 3- regocijarnos en nuestro sufrimiento. ¿Están locos? ¿O simplemente soy un debilucho? Es cierto, que durante mis días oscuros de emociones dolorosos estos pasajes me enojaron.

A medida que pasaban los días, las semanas y los meses, y seguía buscando la Palabra de Dios para consolarme y darme esperanzas, me topé con otra escritura que había conocido de niña pero que no le puse mucha atención hasta que la necesité: “No te aflijas, porque el gozo del Señor es tu fortaleza “(Nehemías 8:10). Ahora sé que Nehemías no estaba instruyendo a las madres de los bebés que acababan de morir de ser felices. Pero él le estaba diciendo esto a un gran grupo del pueblo de Dios que habían estado en cautiverio e intentaban reconstruir sus vidas. Estaban deprimidos, desanimados y devastados. Nehemías les estaba dando una charla animada. Él no dijo que lo superaras, y simplemente alegrarte por lo que tienes. No, él reconoció la situación actual y básicamente les dijo que su placer y felicidad en el Señor es lo que los llevará a través de esta temporada tan difícil. Reflexioné sobre esto y me di cuenta de que era muy parecido a esos israelitas. Acababa de recibir una sentencia horrible de vivir el resto de mi vida sin mi bebé, estaba tratando de reconstruir mi vida, pero estaba luchando terriblemente.

Con el tiempo, decidí que iba a hacer un esfuerzo para ser más feliz. Decidi que nunca tendría las respuestas de por qué murió mi bebé, y tenía que elegir entre vivir en un estado constante de tristeza o intentar sonreír, reír y descubrir lo bueno en lo malo. ¿Lo considero alegría cuando enfrenté sufrimientos? Bueno ... tal vez no de inmediato, pero me gusta pensar que eventualmente lo hago. Verdaderamente, veo que las penas que he soportado definitivamente han desarrollado perseverancia dentro de mí. Y esa perseverancia ha moldeado mi carácter en lo que soy hoy. Y esa nueva yo está tan llena de bendita seguridad (Romanos 5: 3-4) que sin duda volveré a ver a mis bebés algún día.

A medida que los días festivos evocan una gran cantidad de emociones cuando nos faltan seres queridos que queremos aquí con nosotros, tenemos que tomar una decisión. Podemos elegir la miseria, la destrucción y la ruina. O podemos decidir ser felices a pesar de nuestra tristeza y permitir que el Señor nos llene a la capacidad de superar los tiempos difíciles. Mientras nos despedimos de 2019 y entramos en una nueva década, yo desafío a todos nosotros a centrarnos en la belleza y las bendiciones de nuestro sufrimiento, a pesar de la tristeza. Elijamos la alegría.
Why is grieving such a struggle? We feel like we are cracked, broken, trying to understand these waves of emotions of grief. We can be happy one moment, and the next hiding in the closet sobbing uncontrollably because a scent caught us off-guard or a date reminded us what we should be doing.

We were not meant to grieve. We were not meant to see the death of our loved ones. But sin came, along with death, and then grief.

“Sin, in its entirety, bringeth forth death.”
James 1:15

“For the wages of sin is death.”
Romans 6:23

I’ve known all this. It was taught to me from a young age. And at the time, I just categorized it as some of those bad things I did, “breaking the rules.”

But in my grief, I really struggled with this simple thought. Verses like King David stating he would go to his baby in heaven someday were meant to be supportive. To me, though, I could immediately point to David’s sin as why his baby died, but what was mine? What was yours? What was any body’s that they did something so horrible their baby had to die?

It took me quite a few years (some days I’m still not totally there) and lots of deep soul searching. There were many times (and still are) I had to put this complex problem back on the shelf because either my heart felt or God just knew I wasn’t ready for the answers.

Recently, though, 10 years after my loss, God’s given me a little more wisdom in my journey. God created a perfect world when He created Eden. His perfect garden where everyone would live in peace and happiness with no death, tears or suffering.

But then... sin happened.

And with sin, brought forth death. The death of the innocent. The death of the first animal to make clothing for Adam and Eve. The death of Able. The death of so much more, including infants as shared in the Old Testament and other historical documents.

At the time of my loss, I kept thinking “what did I do wrong?” I wanted answers. Why? So I could fix it. So I could do better. I was one of those students who wanted to know what I needed to do to get the “A.”

But this wasn’t an “A” situation. It wasn’t something I could just fix. And I struggled in not being able to fix it like I try to do everything else.

Lately, I have begun to realize more about our fallen world. We are born into sin, and sin brings forth death, as said in James. While I would like to pinpoint where my fault was, there wasn’t any specific thing. My baby died, because we live in a fallen world. People battle cancer, diseases, and other kinds of ailments, because we live in a fallen world.

I do sin, so I do have the blame in my own personal sins, and thankfully I can claim the other part of Romans 6:23 that I have the “gift of God, which is enteral life in Christ Jesus our Lord,” when I admitted I was a sinner and asked Jesus to save me. But my loss is not God “punishing me” for my sin. It’s because death happens in a fallen world of sin. And unfortunately, our babies were caught in this.

I do know God could have stopped what was happening and given me the miracle, the healing I so desired. But what I desire for healing isn’t always what God desires for me in healing.

God has slowly been healing my heart. He didn’t heal my baby or my womb or whatever happened to my baby 10 years ago. I won’t know exactly what happened until I join her in heaven.

I struggle because I want to see the bigger picture, what happened, why it happened, and what will happen. But only God knows that.

In the meantime, He has been slowly filling the cracks and holes in my heart. The crack and hole will always be there, just as we see in the Japanese art of Kintsugi. The cracks and holes are still visible, but the beauty in them is the story of the brokenness, and the artist pouring the gold in to make what was once broken, whole again.
M.E.N.D. CHAPTER UPDATES

Christmas is a special time for some chapters as they host Christmas Candlelight Ceremonies. These ceremonies provide special moments for families to focus and remember their babies during the holiday season. For more details on a Christmas Ceremony hosted by a chapter near you, please visit www.mend.org/events for information and to register.

Greater Houston Area

M.E.N.D. – Greater Houston Area is looking forward to our Christmas Candlelight Ceremony on December 7, at 7:00 PM at Spring Baptist Church. Watch our facebook page for more updates and visit www.mend.org to register. We are praying for you throughout this holiday season. We know this time of year can bring to surface so much of our grief. While we always miss our babies, Thanksgiving and Christmas time seems to highlight how much we miss them. We are here for you. We are praying for you.

Stormy

MidMichigan

M.E.N.D. – MidMichigan continues to welcome new women and couples each month to our group. We are thankful for the support we’ve felt from the community and look forward to reaching more grieving families in the MidMichigan region. Our hearts and prayers are with you during this holiday season.

Karen

Southwest Missouri

Our chapter continues to connect and provide comfort to hurting families in the SW Missouri area. At our support groups held the first Thursday of each month, we consistently welcome new families with babies in heaven. I have also had several opportunities to share about our chapter in our community. Our 10th Annual Christmas Candlelight Ceremony will be held on Monday, December 9, at 7:00 PM at Second Baptist Church. For more information contact Kathryn@mend.org.

Kathryn

Columbus, Ohio

Thankfully, we are scheduled to hold our first support group meeting on November 11. We are grateful for the opportunity to provide comfort for grieving families in Columbus and the surrounding areas.

As the holiday season draws near, we are praying for a gentle and peaceful time. We all know the holidays can be emotional, and sometimes even painful, but we want to encourage that we are on this journey toward healing with you. To find out about M.E.N.D.-Columbus, donate, or volunteer, please feel free to contact me at latrina@mend.org. We are praying for you!

LaTrina

San Antonio, Texas

M.E.N.D. - San Antonio continues to grow and provide comfort to families in San Antonio. We are praying for a gentle holiday season.

We are working with other organizations in the area to educate and serve our community. For more information about M.E.N.D.-San Antonio, please email katie@mend.org or call/text (307) 217-6363.

Bryan/College Station, Texas

M.E.N.D. – Bryan/College Station held our annual Walk of Remembrance! It was a beautiful event that concluded with a mass butterfly release. We were able to celebrate and remember all of our babies in heaven. I want to thank the George H.W. Bush Presidential Library and Museum for hosting our event as well as Nothing Bundt Cakes of College Station for sponsoring our event. This event could not have happened without our wonderful volunteers: LaRhesa Johnson, JaeCee Crawford, Jason Drude, Jennie Drude, Janet Divin, Kara Wilkerson, Stacy Ferrell and Ashlea Schroeder.

Jennie
Palm Beach, Florida
MEND—Palm Beach, Florida continues to connect to broken-hearted moms and dads in our community by collaborating with our local hospitals and non-profits who are dedicated to helping families in their grief.

Our first Wave of Light was a beautiful remembrance event of families gathering to light candles in honor of our babies in heaven. We spoke each of their names and whispered “I love you” into the wind, then shared our stories and fellowshipped together. Our hope is that our Christmas Candlelight Ceremony is just as beautiful and reflects the unique beauty of every baby’s story!

MEND—Palm Beach needs a few helping hands. We are currently looking for a few talented volunteer assistants to help lead the chapter. If you’d like to help, or know someone who might, please contact me for more details!

Jessica

Tulsa, Oklahoma

I am honored to be named the new Chapter Director of MEND—Tulsa. I attended my first meeting in 2011, and I am so thankful to our previous Chapter Director, Lisa Daily, for the support our family was given when we were fresh in our grief journey. I speak for many in Tulsa who are thankful for all she has done in her many years of service. Lisa, you will be deeply missed by many in Tulsa.

We will be holding a Christmas Candlelight Ceremony on December 10. Please watch our facebook page and our website (www.mend.org) for details, as well as how to register.

Cat

Lynchburg, Virginia

We are happy to say we are closer to opening MEND—Lynchburg. We are still looking for two more assistants who can help me run our chapter. If you are interested, please email me at Melissa@mend.org for more information.

With the upcoming holiday season, I hope it is gentle on you. I know how hard it is to celebrate when part of you is missing.

Melissa

Denver

MEND—Denver is currently seeking a new support group location closer to downtown Denver. If you know of any spaces available, please contact me at kimberly@mend.org.

Kimberly

Chicagoland

MEND—Chicagoland cherish our opportunities to remember each and every Chicagoland baby in heaven as we approach the holiday season. We lovingly remembered them with a lighted bag walk and balloon release in October. We look forward to our tree decorating day at the Brookfield Zoo Lights display, which will be held on Saturday, November 23. We know how hard the holidays can be when missing a baby you hold so dear. We are thankful to continue to walk with families in our area during this holiday season as we remember our babies together.

Sara

NW Washington

MEND—NW Washington invites you to join us this holiday season for our 9th Annual Christmas Candlelight Ceremony. Please watch our facebook page and our website (www.mend.org) for details, as well as how to register. Childcare for children under 5 will be available. We invite you to bring any family and friends with you.

We are thankful for the people and businesses listed below who supported our chapter in contributing to our online auction. Thank you also to all who participated in our auction to help raise funds for our chapter.

6 Feelings You Have When You Have A Rainbow Baby
Written by Rachel Quenzer,
Founder and owner of The Everyday Mom Life and Sugar Maple Farmhouse

...Having a rainbow baby always sounds like such a simple, beautiful concept. And it is beautiful, but it’s nowhere close to simple....
Before giving birth to my daughter I had a stillborn son and three miscarriages....
In the month that followed after her birth, I experienced a range of emotions that some would expect and some that I’ve actually never told anyone about.

Shock
It happened! I had done it. I made a person. Now what am I supposed to do?

Freedom
All of a sudden I could breathe again. ...The proverbial weight on my shoulders felt like it had physically been removed. I was free. Free from pain, free from anguish, free from sorrow, guilt and mourning.

Indescribable Joy
Most people might think you experience joy right away being a parent after loss. I didn’t. It didn’t take long for me but it wasn’t the first day.

Anxiety/Postpartum Anxiety
Once I knew I loved her, I knew I could lose her. Having a child after loss isn’t easy. I could imagine the scenarios in my head and would break down in tears without any warning. Everything scared me.

Remorse
My daughter was a bit colicky the first few months of her life. ...it made me miss her older brother desperately. .... I wondered if it would be so difficult with him and I wondered what he would have been like as a baby.

Contentment/Fulfillment
.... a perfectly ordinary moment that normally wouldn’t stand out to someone. But for me it was the symbolism for my contentment with life and my fulfillment in becoming a mother. I didn’t need anything else. I didn’t want anything else. I had it all and it was glorious.
That moment is the embodiment of a rainbow for me.

I Can Breathe Again:
Put One Foot in Front of the Other and Give Yourself Permission to Heal
Written by Ashley K Pittman

I loved how the author, Ashley, began the book with how she and her husband met. She’s very open and honest with her gynecological history, which was important for the reader to understand Ashley’s journey. When she talked about the excitement of how she felt when she saw the positive pregnancy test, I felt like I was right there with her in the excitement.

Ashley’s emotions and thoughts throughout the book about each pregnancy, loss and birth of her living children brought me to tears as I grieved and celebrated with her, and remembered my own journey in motherhood.

I related to her experiences, and it was a bittersweet time of remembering my own pregnancies. Ashley had a difficult journey, but was victorious through it all. She encourages the reader to know we can make it through. She lets the reader know we are not alone, and that it is okay to seek professional help. One of my favorite parts of the book is the prayers she has for the reader to pray and the concluding letter to parents in a similar journey.
Life After Loss

The Beauty in Seeing His Name

Written by Stormy Mitchell, M.E.N.D.-Greater Houston Area Chapter Director

My husband and I live in south Texas, just north of Houston. We don’t get the chance to see snow where we live very often. If it snows locally, it is usually a flurry of snow here and there, but it rarely sticks to the ground. However, in December 2017 and January of 2018 we got snow! And the snow stuck around for a little while. When the snow started to accumulate, I knew instantly I had to write the name of our firstborn son Gideon in the snow as a way to remember him. Our neighborhood had become a beautiful winter wonderland. And though Gideon never experienced snow on this earth, I wanted him to be a part of the wonderment and joy with his family. If he had lived, he would have been excitedly running around with his 2 little brothers, experiencing the magic of winter. He is always in our hearts. But there was just something special about seeing his name in the pure white snow. Gideon.

People say each snowflake is unique. No two are alike. Just like no two people are alike. Gideon was like a snowflake in that way, there could be no one like him ever again. His soul, his essence, who he was is miraculous and remarkable. There will never be another him. And just like those snowflakes stayed with us only briefly, so did our sweet boy’s earthly life. The snow melted before we were ready, and we had to say goodbye to the beauty of the snow, our son left us before we were ready and we had to say goodbye to the beauty of his life. One day, when we all get to be with Jesus, it will be that very moment is filled with the same magnificence of a snowy day. And that snow will never melt and go away.

The Pregnant Pause
Written by Lori M Alcorn

I had the pleasure of reading The Pregnant Pause and learning the author’s journey of infertility and miscarriage. She was “finding positivity when all the results are negative,” as the book states.

Lori talks about her dream of being a mom and getting married. She dives into her challenges of not being able to carry a baby to term. She shared that all the challenges God gave her were for a purpose. She changed careers and went back to school. Through it all she learned to give it to God, and know in everything, He has never left her side. Being a mom is still in her plan, but Lori had to learn it’s not about following only her plan, but God’s plan. This book shows what true faith is.
