Juggling What Is Normal

"Those we love don’t go away, they walk beside us every day...
unseen,
unheard,
but always near,
still loved,
still missed,
and very dear.”

- Author Unknown

After loss, many of us feel paralyzed in life by grief. Yet we eventually hit a point where we need "normal" when life feels anything but "normal." We begin to do the normal things out of necessity, or find new activities we can control in the midst of the uncontrollable. As we find balance between what was and what is, know your baby is still very much part of the life you are still living. We are not moving on from our babies; we are simply moving forward as parents to children in heaven.

Within minutes of learning our baby Jonathan no longer had a heartbeat, I caught myself wondering how our little family could ever return to the life we lived before I got pregnant. Yet in the midst of my initial shock and horror, that’s all I wanted to do - go back to where we were before Jonathan was conceived and pretend none of this ever happened. Basically, I just wanted to go back to normal as fast as I could.

I quickly learned going back to normal was not possible, and truly, I didn’t want to go back to “pre-Jonathan”. I realized I didn’t want to pretend he didn’t exist. Instead, I wanted the world to know he was here for a short time, he was stillborn, he is deeply missed, and our lives will never be the same! While juggling all these hard emotions, I had to figure out how to get out of bed each morning to take care of our 3-year-old, keep up with the housework, be at least an okay wife to my husband, and take care of myself. All of that was so overwhelming to me that I found myself slipping back into the thoughts of feeling we never should have gotten pregnant! But then Jonathan would never have existed! Oh, the mental turmoil! These excruciating emotions were so intense and confusing, I could not articulate them to anyone.

At that time, I worked a few hours a week at my dad’s law firm. Very soon after Jonathan’s stillbirth, despite not being released to drive yet after my C-section, I NEEDED to do something normal. So, I decided to go to the office for a couple of hours on a Saturday afternoon. I didn’t expect anyone to be there. As I caught up on a few things at my desk, one of the attorneys walked by my workstation. He and his wife had also suffered a stillbirth a couple of years prior. He was very surprised to see me and just stood there looking at me for a second. Finally, he said, “You know, when we lost our baby girl, all we wanted to do was get back to normal. But someone wisely told us, ‘You can’t get back to normal because what was once normal in your life will never be normal again.’ So, you have to go forward to find your new normal.” That bit of wisdom is probably the most profound statement anyone said to me during my darkest days of grieving. So, I made it my mission to create and find our new normal.

That new normal sometimes meant giving myself permission to stay in bed as long as I wanted and to just turn on cartoons for our little boy. It meant asking my husband to bring something home for dinner, rather than me exerting what little energy I had to figure out what we were going to eat that night. It meant creating new holiday traditions and making regular visits to the cemetery. It also meant re-establishing some relationships and sadly ending others (because they just no longer "got" us). And it meant giving myself grace if I couldn’t muster the strength to get everyday tasks completed.

Over the years, a new normal was firmly created for our little family of three, and all those duties that were difficult to achieve once again became second nature to me. I think about those early months of sorrow and remember how incredibly difficult they were. I wonder how I survived. Truly, only by the grace of God am I here 28 years later to encourage you that you will make it, too! Just focus on one day at a time. The Lord is merciful to the brokenhearted. Turn to Him for help, and I am confident you will survive and get through each day, just as I have.

“It is of the Lord’s mercies that we are not consumed, because His compassions fail not. They are new every morning: Great is Thy faithfulness, the Lord is my portion, saith my soul; therefore will I hope in Him.”

Haciendo Malabares Con Lo Normal

Artículo de Presidente y Fundadora, Rebekah Mitchell,
Mamá de Jonathan Daniel y bebé Mitchell

A los pocos minutos de enterarme de que nuestro pequeño Jonathan ya no tenía latidos cardíacos, me sorprendí preguntándome cómo nuestra pequeña familia podría volver a la vida que teníamos antes de quedar embarazada. Sin embargo, en medio de mi conmoción y horror iniciales, eso era todo lo que quería hacer: volver a donde estábamos antes de que se concibiera a Jonathan y fingir que nada de esto sucedió. Básicamente, solo quería volver a la normalidad lo más rápido que pudiera.

Rápidamente aprendí que no era posible volver a la normalidad y, sinceramente, no quería volver a ser "ante-Jonathan". Me di cuenta de que no quería fingir que no existía, sino que quería que el mundo supiera que estuvo aquí por un corto tiempo, nació sin vida, lo extrañamos profundamente y ¡nuestras vidas nunca serán las mismas! Mientras hacía malabares con todas estas emociones fuertes, tenía que averiguar cómo levantarme de la cama cada mañana para cuidar nuestro hijo de tres años, continuar con las tareas del hogar, ser el menos una buena esposa para mi esposo y cuidar de mí mismo. Todo eso fue tan abrumador para mí, que me encontré cayendo de nuevo en pensamientos de sentir que ¡nunca deberíamos haber quedado embarazados! ¡Pero entonces Jonathan nunca habría existido! ¡Oh, la confusión mental! Estas emociones insoportables eran tan intensas y confusas que no podía articularlas a nadie.

En ese momento, trabajaba algunas horas a la semana en la oficina de abogados de mi padre. Muy poco después de la muerte fetal de Jonathan, a pesar de que aún no me habían dado permiso para conducir después de mi cesárea, NECESITABA hacer algo normal, así que decidí ir a la oficina un par de horas un sábado por la tarde. No esperaba que hubiera nadie allí. Mientras me ponía al día con algunas cosas en mi escritorio, uno de los abogados pasó por mi estación de trabajo. Él y su esposa también habían sufrido una muerte fetal un par de años antes. Estaba muy sorprendido de verme, y se quedó allí mirándome por un segundo. Finalmente, dijo: “Sabes, cuando perdí a nuestra bebé, todo lo que queríamos era volver a la normalidad. Pero alguien sabiamente nos dijo: ‘No puedes volver a la normalidad porque lo que una vez fue normal en tu vida nunca volverá a ser normal’. Entonces, debes seguir adelante para encontrar tu nueva normalidad”. Ese poco de sabiduría es probablemente la declaración más profunda que alguien me dijo durante mis días más oscuros de mi dolor. Entonces, hice mi misión de crear y encontrar nuestra nueva normalidad.

Esa nueva normalidad a veces significaba darme permiso para quedarme en la cama todo el tiempo que quisiera y solo poner dibujos animados en la televisión para nuestro pequeño. Significaba pedirle a mi esposo que trajera algo a casa para la cena, en lugar de que yo ejerciera la poca energía que tenía para averiguar qué íbamos a comer esa noche. Significaba crear nuevas tradiciones navideñas y hacer visitas regulares al cementerio. También significó establecer algunas relaciones y terminar tristemente con otras (porque simplemente ya no nos entendían). Y significaba darme gracia si no podía reunir la fuerza para completar las tareas diarias.

A lo largo de los años, se creó firmemente una nueva normalidad para nuestra pequeña familia de tres, y todos esos deberes que eran difíciles de lograr una vez más se convirtieron en una segunda naturaleza para mí. Pienso en esos primeros meses de dolor y recuerdo lo increíblemente difíciles que fueron. Me pregunto cómo sobreviví? ¡En verdad, solo por la gracia de Dios estoy aquí 28 años después para animarte a que tú también lo logres! Solo enfócate en un día a la vez. El Señor es misericordioso con los quebrantados de corazón. Vuélvete a Él en busca de ayuda, y confío en que sobrevivirás y superarás cada día, tal como lo he hecho yo.

“Es por las misericordias del Señor
que no somos consumidos, porque sus misericordias nunca decaen.
Son nuevas cada mañana:
Grande es tu fidelidad,
el Señor es mi porción,
dice mi alma;
por tanto, en él esperaré.”

The Garden of Hope is a place of peace and solace where families can come for a quiet time of reflection, prayer, or even to celebrate the life of their loved one.
The Garden of Hope was established by M.E.N.D. in 2016, and is located on property of Calvary Church in Irving, Texas.

You can remember your loved one by purchasing a brick in the Garden of Hope. Brick purchases can be made at https://www.mend.org/garden-of-hope.
The order deadline for 2023 installation is July 15, 2023. To ensure the bricks are ready for the 2023 Walk to Remember, brick orders will be closed from July 16 – October 6, 2023. Orders will be live again from October 7, 2023 – July 15, 2024 October 2024 installation.
