Jefferson's

Jefferson's Bourbon makes their bourbon in small batches, ridiculously small batches. This enables them to showcase the different flavors that result from the wood in each barrel, as in the case of single barrel bourbons. They maintain the consistency that is found in small batch bottling through their barrel selections and compare it to making dinner for 8 friends rather than 80 people. 21

Russell's

If you ask us, this here is some of the greatest stuff and that's why we hand selected it for you. So good in fact, our team member's put their own names on it. With these whiskies residing very close to each other for 9 years, it is amazing to see the unique differences each whiskey has picked up from its barrel. Which one is your favorite? 21
