6.3 People Rights and Culture Sustainability

Population is suffering from issues of environmental degradation, which are conditioned on the underdevelopment because of globalization processes (conflicts, natural disasters, exile, etc.), as the Encyclical Laudato Si reflects, there is urgency of institutional help and international conventions about forced displacement.

In this section, different perspectives will be analyzed to explain the local and global processes that are currently produced, such as forced displacement in both host and issuing country, in order to promote cultural diversity, avoiding the disappearance of indigenous peoples. Also, new themes for discussion, investigative trends and action for the current migration processes will be analyzed.
