Big Brothers/Big Sisters

Jaclyn, an elementary school student was not happy with school, and she was having trouble learning to print her letters. Jaclyn is a left handed student and we provided a left handed Big. Jaclyn is doing much better academically. She is no longer struggling with her printing and is happy to go to school. Her teachers and her mom noticed the changes. Jaclyn said she loves her Big Sister because she writes just like her.

Orangeville Public Library

I have used the library resources to pursue my interests from railroading to military history with several other well-covered topics. I volunteer at the library and have assisted with projects from used book sales through special topic presentations. Always I find resources that inform, entertain and delight me. My experiences at the library are a regular part of each week and have raised my awareness of local history and our community and its people. Meeting the needs and interests of a broad range of patrons, including special children's programs, the library serves, with distinction, the Orangeville community and is a great asset to all who visit. – Warren Utermahlen, resident of the Orangeville Manor veteran's home and frequent volunteer at the library

The Children's Museum

“The Children's Museum is an invaluable resource giving the children of our community access to an array of quality programs and exhibits. Their programs offer authentic educational experiences that foster creativity and innovation. My children have thoroughly enjoyed their time spent at the museum.”

CHAIRPERSON MESSAGE

This has been a year of transitions for the United Way of Columbia County. With a new CEO, new location, new Community Impact Model, and many smaller changes, we have been extremely busy! As tends to happen in our community in times of need, an overwhelming number of busy people have come together to guide our United Way through these transitions and into an exciting future. This document is full of the names of many of those individuals and groups, but there are countless others who have contributed their time, energy, knowledge, and resources to support the many facets of our work. It is truly a mark of the character of this community that so many different people choose to make working toward the common good a priority in their busy lives.

As we look to the future, we have so much to be excited about. Our emphasis on community impact will allow us to optimally direct our efforts toward initiatives that target the greatest needs and greatest opportunities throughout our community. Our efforts to increase the support, guidance, and opportunities for collaboration we foster within the community are already yielding exciting new partnerships and ideas that will continue to nurture the already incredibly strong caring power of our community to foster the common good.

Thinking about the strength of this community and the United Way of Columbia County also draws my mind to the foundation that allows for this exciting growth. The work of John Thomas and Connie Ryan to build and sustain this organization for so many years created the springboard for these next steps and our organization and community owe them both immense gratitude.

I also feel compelled to offer special thanks to our President and CEO, Ms. Adrienne Mael. Her first year with United Way has been full of energy and innovation and I immensely grateful for her leadership. Our Board of Directors has been exceptionally active this year as change brings both opportunity and the necessity to carefully evaluate every step. Their hard work, wisdom, and dedication are inspiring. Finally, in a year with so many things happening, we had a very successful campaign. I'd like to thank you campaign chairs Al Luschas and Paul Reichart and our outstandingly dedicated Campaign Committee.
