OUR HISTORY

Established circa 1858, 7 Mile House is an historic, family-owned restaurant, sports bar and live music venue serving a unique mix of homestyle Italian/American/Filipino food beautifully plated with a wide array of beers and almost any cocktail you can imagine.

A perfect combination of great food, fun atmosphere, sports and nightly musical entertainment draws a diverse, local crowd --- a far cry from its more than 160 years of colorful history.

A RICH & "NOTORIOUS" PAST

7 Mile House is the last "Mile House" left standing in its original location in the Bay Area. "Mile Houses", established in the mid 1800s, served as local post offices and old stagecoach stops where horses rested and were exchanged. Later, Mile Houses evolved into popular neighborhood watering holes, a Pony Express route, a hotel and, in some cases, even a brothel.

The 7 Mile House has stood as witness to some of San Francisco's more colorful, albeit sometimes notorious, moments in history. It has been recorded that on August 6, 1876, young members of the Hayes Valley Gang, while on a criminal spree of thievery, assault and manslaughter in the Mission District, made a pit-stop at the 7 Mile House to harass passersby along the way.

It was one of the events that marked the violent tradition of gangs and gang wars in Old San Francisco, and that inspired the terms "hood" and "hoodlums".

During Prohibition in the early 1920s, when the neighborhood now called Brisbane, was known for moonshining and bootlegging, the 7 Mile House became one of the few locations in the area that sold whiskey.

Then more than 50 years later, 7 Mile House became well known for its rough atmosphere with truckers cashing their paychecks and spending their hard-earned money at the bar and bikers frequenting the establishment.

In the 80s, the bar later became popular for its Famous 7 Mile Burgers -- its large, tasty burgers served up in a greasy spoon kitchen by a beloved and elderly lady named Doris.

Later, the 7 Mile House became infamous for its underground sports gambling activities. Rumor has it that it housed the largest illegal operation of its kind West of the Mississippi with ties to clandestine organizations in Costa Rica until the FBI raided and arrested the accused -- twice.

THE 7 MILE HOUSE TODAY

Despite such a notorious past and more than a hundred sixty years of changes to San Francisco's urban landscape, 7 Mile House has endured. Now home to a family restaurant, sports bar and live music venue, 7 Mile's menu is as diverse as the locals serving up its famous Cow Palace Burgers, San Francisco's popular Cioppino, Filipino-style adobo and lumpia, salads, seafood pastas and other mouth-watering dishes.

Entertainment is a nightly staple at 7 Mile, where guests are never bored with live music every single night, and large screen HDTVs showing multiple sports games. The best entertainment of all though is that at 7 Mile, where everyone's treated like family, there is always good conversation, laughter and merry-making to be had!
