

SW116 - Storywriter for Social Enterprise

Numberfit is an Award Winning Social Enterprise designed to mix education and entertainment to make learning engaging and accessible to young people.

Having started by making numeracy into team sport for children we are now rapidly scaling up and diversifying our offering. We are currently launching our educational activity boxes that mix arts and crafts, cookery and other activities with educational content. We are also working towards designing mobile educational theme parks, illustrating narratives and a whole plethora of interesting projects.

We look to blend creative skill sets with technical skill sets to find imaginative solutions to educating young people.

We are looking for someone creative and artistic to come on board to develop characters and short stories and rhymes to go in our activity sheets, books and online resources.

The successful candidate should have an interest in writing stories and children's fiction (and potentially animation as well).

If you would like to be part of a creative, innovative organisation with the aim of enriching the education experience of future generations, please apply by sending us your CV, cover letter and portfolio or samples of recent work. Please send it to enquiries@numberfit.com with the subject line SW116.

This is an ongoing requirement with a rolling closing date.
