

Census 2020—April 1, 2020

In Alabama...

#Census2020

The 2010 Census should have counted 17,318 additional children under age 5.

Our undercount has cost us...

$13,075,090

every year in funding from just five of the many federally funded programs for children and families.

Say #CountMeIn to #CountAllKids in 2020 and help us spread the word.

For more information go to 2020Census.gov

Census 2020—April 1, 2020

In Alabama...

#Census2020

The 2010 Census should have counted 17,318 additional children under age 5.

Our undercount has cost us...

$13,075,090

every year in funding from just five of the many federally funded programs for children and families.

Say #CountMeIn to #CountAllKids in 2020 and help us spread the word.

For more information go to 2020Census.gov

Count Everyone Once, Only Once and In the Right Place

If you have children in your home, make sure they are counted in the right place.

- The general rule is: Count children in the home where they live and sleep most of the time, even if their parents do not live there.
- If you've just had a baby, and your baby is still in the hospital on Census Day (April 1, 2020), then count your baby at the home where he or she will live and sleep most of the time.
- If children spend time in more than one home, count them where they stay most often. If their time is evenly divided, or if you do not know where they stay most often, count them where they are staying on April 1, 2020.
- If you are helping to take care of a friend's or family member's child, and the child does not have a permanent place to live, count the child if he or she is staying with you on April 1, 2020—even if it's only temporary.

Count Everyone Once, Only Once and In the Right Place

If you have children in your home, make sure they are counted in the right place.

- The general rule is: Count children in the home where they live and sleep most of the time, even if their parents do not live there.
- If you've just had a baby, and your baby is still in the hospital on Census Day (April 1, 2020), then count your baby at the home where he or she will live and sleep most of the time.
- If children spend time in more than one home, count them where they stay most often. If their time is evenly divided, or if you do not know where they stay most often, count them where they are staying on April 1, 2020.
- If you are helping to take care of a friend's or family member's child, and the child does not have a permanent place to live, count the child if he or she is staying with you on April 1, 2020—even if it's only temporary.

