COOK SILVERMAN SEARCH IS A RETAINED EXECUTIVE SEARCH FIRM SERVING THE NONPROFIT COMMUNITY
ABOUT REDLANDS SYMPHONY ASSOCIATION

Founded in 1950, the Redlands Symphony Association (RSA) is a professional performing arts organization. The organization produces a traditional concert season and performs in community performances throughout Southern California, including the Redlands Bowl summer music festival. The Symphony is an American Federation of Musicians (AMF) orchestra and operates under a collective bargaining agreement with AMF Local 47 in Los Angeles. As part of its mission to "inspire and educate", the RSA provides programs throughout the year designed to provide access to live performances and music education to community youth.

Since 2016 the Orchestra has been led by Music Director and Conductor Ransom Wilson. Maestro Wilson studied at Juilliard School in New York and is on the faculty of the Yale School of Music. As a renowned flutist, Ransom has performed with many distinguished musicians and often invites them to play with the Redlands Symphony. Maestro Wilson favors innovative programming and a more relaxed concert style in order to appeal to a broader audience, which has contributed to increased ticket sales and attendance. Since his arrival, he has sought out opportunities to commission new works for the orchestra. To date the orchestra has commissioned an overture from composer Sean Friar, and a large work for chorus and orchestra from Lilya Ugay. Additionally, in 2018, the orchestra participated with five other organizations—including the Chamber Music Society of Lincoln Center—in the commissioning of a new work from Grammy and Pulitzer winning composer John Luther Adams, entitled there is no one, not even the wind.

The Redlands Symphony has an operating budget of approximately one million dollars with a reserve of $500,000 and an endowment of $1,250,000. The University of Redlands provides the orchestra with in-kind support in numerous ways including the use of the 1200 seat Memorial Chapel, rehearsal space and use of their event center for the Symphony's Gala Event. In return the Symphony provides opportunity for outstanding students at the School of Music to gain experience playing symphonic concerts with some of the region's finest artists.

Community

Surrounded by the San Bernardino Mountains, Redlands is located 60 miles east of Los Angeles and 45 miles west of the Coachella Valley and Palm Springs, California. With more than 70,000 residents the city is known for its Victorian and historical architecture, orange groves, Lincoln Memorial Shrine, University of Redlands, The Redlands Bowl, Kimberly House and Gardens, Museum of Redlands and the culturally vibrant Redland Symphony. Incorporated in 1888, Redlands derived its name from the color of the area's adobe soil. Located in an ideal climate for citrus production, Redlands soon began calling itself the Navel Orange Capital of the World. Redlands is home to the University of Redlands, an independent liberal arts and sciences university, consistently ranked among the, best universities in the nation by U.S. NEWS & WORLD REPORT. The university serves a select student body of 4000 through its three primary academic programs: residential College of Arts & Sciences, School of Business and School of Education. A part of the College of Arts & Sciences, the School of Music offers a conservatory approach in a liberal arts setting.

Redlands Symphony Association Equity Statement

The Redlands Symphony Association's (RSA) equity goal is to serve our mission of providing exceptional classical symphonic music programs that entertain and educate, while creating an artistic community that promotes equity, diversity, fairness, and equal access for everyone. The RSA does now and always has abhorred discrimination of any kind. By our policies and our programs, we strive to reflect the broad multicultural tradition of all who live in Redlands and our surrounding community.

We consider ourselves to be responsible stewards of a precious artistic form. In that role, we believe it is our duty to present classical symphonic music in a range of options including the concert hall, the classroom and in the broader community. While we respect the importance and value of all musical forms, we are dedicated to the classical repertoire. All our programming shall emanate from this commitment. As we pursue musical artists, organizational leadership – both volunteer and professional – and provide opportunities for people to make and experience classical music, we are committed to treating all people in an equitable manner.

We understand that the successful creation of a sustainable equity-based, democratic community, requires intentional decisions that reflect these values and an ongoing effort to avoid creating barriers that distract from this commitment. To this end, RSA's leadership agrees to periodically review the current status of the organization's promise to pursue this path and make adjustments when necessary.
