

IMBIBABLE

LA CRUZ DE COMAL

By Jessica Dupuy
Photography by Andy Sams

Summer 2012

Lewis Dickson and Tony Coturri are making natural Texas wines. But what does this mean?

There's a little winery near Canyon Lake that's turning heads among Central Texas's top wine experts. La Cruz de Comal, nestled in a small valley just beyond New Braunfels, is fast becoming known for producing crisp, delicate wines that reveal an authentic character for the place in which they were made. One sip, and you'll taste an inherent uniqueness—something a little different about these wines.