Thank You to Our Supporters

Recognizing our Lincoln supporters at the annual giving level of $100 and above, for their generosity and belief in us during the fiscal year 2013-2014.

$100,000 and above
Oakland Fund for Children and Youth

$50,000 - $99,999
Alameda County Social Services Agency, Nadus Foundation, S.N. Cowell Foundation, Zolotherk Family Foundation

$25,000 - $49,999
First S Alameda County, Holmberg Charitable Lead Trust

$10,000 - $24,999
Benard E. & Alba Wirden Charitable Foundation, Duffllod Flower Group, Safeway Foundation, Thomas J. Long Foundation, T. Rowe Prize Foundation, William F. Paulson and Shirley A. Allison

$5,000 - $9,999

$2,500 - $4,999
Diane and Neil Goodhue, Thomas and Elizabeth Hanby, Maryjane Mosher Schreiber Foundation, Diana L. Nettleton, Karen and Steven Roland, Christine Stoner-Mertz and Diane and Neil Goodhue, Thomas and Elizabeth Hanby, Maryjane Mosher Schreiber Foundation, Diana L. Nettleton, Karen and Steven Roland, Christine Stoner-Mertz and Diane and Neil Goodhue, Thomas and Elizabeth Hanby, Maryjane Mosher Schreiber Foundation, Diana L. Nettleton, Karen and Steven Roland, Christine Stoner-Mertz and Diane and Neil Goodhue

$1,000 - $2,499

$500 - $999
Pamela Banduk, Douglas Davis, Donald Egan, Allison Michael and Michelle Fahey, Kenery Francis, Martha A. Hartley, Kerferson Jefferson M. Hiltard, Anne Johnson, Karen, McClain Satterley & Greenwood, Andrew H. Miller and Doris B. Howe, Naze Monocure and Stacy Dranton, Stanley F. Sashick, Peggyp and Roland Wign

$100 - $499
John Ake, Geraldine M. Alves, Joan and Carl Arnold, Margaret and David Bard, Bay Area Bookkeepers, Inc, Srida Bell, Yusuf Bistiki, Tess Bignone, Anne Bookholt, Catherine I. Boggs, Cecilia and Ken Brandt, Margeretta B. Balchik, Napoleon Campbell, Margaret and Richard Charfotte, Supervisor Wilma Chan, Sally, and Robert Church, Kathleen and William Clussmen, Shirley and Robert Clousby, Mark Cullin, Susan and Richard Gray, East Bay Independent Insurance Agents Association, Kathryn and Rodolphm England, Valerie Farnham, Donna Fitchett, Firefighters Charity Fund, Oakland, Alameda County, Emeryville, Nathaniel Fisker, John Fraser, James and June Fujikusa, Stephanie Garcia, Darlene and Lawrence Gardner, Lisa Gediqian and Jack Gallo, Neida Ginwright, Dr. Elio Giusi, Barbara and Alan Goldberg, Margaret and Joseph Gontnick, Nicholas Gower, Marylu and George Greig, Mita Hanka, William C. Heathcliff, Karen and Jeffrey Holley

Lincoln celebrates that every child and family can succeed when they have the resources and support they need. We give kids and families the tools they need to overcome the impacts of poverty and community transformation, to take charge of their well-being, to dream big. With Lincoln, they’ll do more than beat the odds, they will change the world.

In Kind Over $100
Marc Crompton, DelSolLakes Construction, Alisa W. Jones

Every effort has been made to ensure the accuracy of these listings, reflecting contributions received from July 1, 2013 to June 30, 2014. We deeply regret any errors or omissions in this publication. Please phone 510.273.4700 x4324 with any corrections.

Lincoln Celebrates with ROOT!

Please join us on May 29th as we celebrate the return to our roots in West Oakland, ushering in a new era of community transformation—strengthening families and changing lives—on youth at a time.

Wine & Tastes
Our fun and festive party begins with wine, signature bites prepared by local culinary stars, and more than a few experiences and curiosities cooked up just for you and your guests.

Feast & Fun
Next up: a family-style feast catered by San Francisco’s Betty Zlatch, and an exciting live auction in the one-of-a-kind Airplane Hangar and Barrel Room.

After Party
When the sun goes down, the after party begins, featuring a carnival of desserts, music and dancing. RSVP at www.ROOT15.eventbrite.com. Fun, festive attire encouraged!

For more info, contact Tess Marino at tessmarino@lincolnchildcenter.org.

IN THIS ISSUE
CELEBRATE WITH US
SPEAK UP IN MAY
IN THIS ISSUE
CELEBRATE WITH US
SPEAK UP IN MAY
Halfway through first grade, Jacob started exhibiting disruptive behaviors. His parents and teachers had become the receiving ends of Jacob’s tantrums, which included slapping, spitting, hitting, and kicking. So at the young age of 6, he was put on medication for ADHD and even restrained at times for his aggressive behavior. Unfortunately, medication was not the answer. Jacob continued to be constantly distracted, disruptive, and have difficulty finishing schoolwork or performing tasks which required his attention.

Jacob’s behavior became uncontrollable, and both the school district and his parents recognized that he needed to be moved from his school into a program that would give him the care and attention he needed before things got worse. ADHD left untreated or misdiagnosed can later contribute to a variety of health problems, including compulsive eating, substance abuse, anxiety, chronic stress and tension, low self-esteem, and in adults, work and financial difficulties, and relationship problems.

Through a long-time partnership with the school district, Jacob joined Lincoln. The organization began by taking Jacob off medication and conducting a thorough assessment to confirm if ADHD was even an accurate diagnosis. Within Jacob's first few months with Lincoln, his behavior made a huge turn. Lincoln teachers and staff taught Jacob coping skills to manage his emotions. Bonding with Lincoln staff helped him not only do his work but excel in his class where he became a leader. He could often be found teaching his peers, “It's okay to get mad. Just take deep breaths.”

Untreated mental illnesses in the U.S. cost more than $100 billion a year.

Jacob’s behavior became uncontrollable, and both the school district and his parents recognized that he needed to be moved from his school into a program that would give him the care and attention he needed before things got worse. ADHD left untreated or misdiagnosed can later contribute to a variety of health problems, including compulsive eating, substance abuse, anxiety, chronic stress and tension, low self-esteem, and in adults, work and financial difficulties, and relationship problems.

Through a long-time partnership with the school district, Jacob joined Lincoln. The organization began by taking Jacob off medication and conducting a thorough assessment to confirm if ADHD was even an accurate diagnosis. Within Jacob's first few months with Lincoln, his behavior made a huge turn. Lincoln teachers and staff taught Jacob coping skills to manage his emotions. Bonding with Lincoln staff helped him not only do his work but excel in his class where he became a leader. He could often be found teaching his peers, “It's okay to get mad. Just take deep breaths.”

Now, more than ever, is the time to talk about mental health. Mental illness and associated trauma cuts across all socioeconomic levels, but the strain is severe for people—and especially children—from low income communities.

Children living in poor neighborhoods are more likely to suffer traumatic incidents, such as witnessing or being the victims of shootings, parental neglect or abuse. They also struggle with a range of detrimental stressors every day, from lack of clean water and nutritious food to housing insecurity and overworked stressed-out parents. The result is chronic stress, which can change the chemical and physical structures of the brain and make it difficult for impacted children to succeed at home and in school.

The human and economic toll of mental illness and trauma is enormous yet often hidden. Untreated mental illnesses in the U.S. cost more than $100 billion a year in lost productivity. Children living in poor neighborhoods are more likely to suffer traumatic incidents.

Local hospitals and clinics must cope with associated chronic physical diseases. Schools must open more special education classes. Courts and jails must handle large number of individuals suffering from mental illnesses.

Understanding these impacts and educating people about mental illness is crucial to our society. “Mental illness affects everyone, regardless if we are the one who is diagnosed,” according to Menninger Clinic’s Rebecca Wagner, PhD. “As a society we are linked together and constantly influencing each other. If one person is ill, then the effect will be experienced widespread. "Mental health matters" because we have a responsibility to take care of ourselves and our society."