

Readers of the Word

"How can God's word be practiced, if it is not known? And how can it be known, if it is not heard? And how can it be heard, if it is not proclaimed? And how can it be proclaimed, if there is no one to proclaim it?" That's a rough translation of St. Paul.

We all appreciate the experience of being able to understand the word of God when it is proclaimed well. It's a treat. We seem to listen with a new kind of attention. Not all of us might be able to recognize why, but all of us know automatically when the person who is speaking has that kind of special quality: a voice that speaks from the heart to witness to God's word.

If that is your gift, why not put it at the service of God's people? Training in techniques of proclaiming and using a microphone can be provided by the parish.

There is no age requirement.
