David is Director and founder of David Stein & Co and has over 30 years of experience in the field of paintings conservation, having worked in both the public and private sector throughout Australia. He has extensive experience in providing conservation services and advice to museums, galleries, government collections, auction houses and private collectors. He has been employed as a conservator in conservation laboratories at the National Gallery of Australia, Art Gallery of New South Wales, National Gallery of Victoria and the Museum of Contemporary Art, and was touring paintings conservator for the NSW Regional Galleries Association.

During this time David saw an increasing demand for the conservation of artworks to a museum standard for private individuals, small museums and galleries, and the burgeoning art market. In 1991 he founded David Stein & Co Conservation, which is now one of the leading private practices specialising in paintings conservation in Australia and undertakes museum standard conservation for the private sector.

David is a Professional Member of the Australian Institute for the Conservation of Cultural Material (AICCM), is a member of the International Institute for Conservation (IIC) and the British Association of Paintings Conservator-Restorers (BAPRC), and has strong networks in the conservation, museum and arts community. He is also the appointed conservator for the Bundanon Trust Collection.
