Letter from the Early Childhood Leadership Commission

Dear Early Childhood Stakeholder,

The Early Childhood Leadership Commission (ECLC) is pleased to endorse Colorado’s Early Childhood Workforce 2020 Plan. Ensuring a high-quality, effective, and diverse early childhood workforce is a critical component in meeting our shared vision that all children are valued, healthy, and thriving by providing quality environments for thousands of young children who participate in Colorado’s early care and learning system.

This plan provides an ambitious roadmap for a comprehensive professional development system designed to recruit, retain, compensate, develop, and support a high-quality early childhood workforce so Colorado’s young children, families, and economies can thrive. Together we have developed an innovative plan designed to improve the effectiveness of the early childhood workforce and the systems that support them.

The ECLC is grateful to the Colorado Cohort and taskforces for the development of the plan and for their collaborative effort and commitment to this exciting work. We are also thankful to the Early Childhood Professional Development Advisory Working Group and the Program Quality and Alignment Subcommittee for their guidance and feedback during this process.

We are committed to elevating Colorado’s early childhood workforce and look forward to the work and the successful implementation of the plan in the years to come.

Sincerely,

Introduction

As Colorado continues to thrive, attracting new businesses and young professionals, the state must prioritize strategies to attract, retain, and support a strong early childhood workforce for children birth through age eight – both for the state’s growing economy and for the growing and increasingly diverse population of young children. Building on the accomplishments of Colorado’s 2010 plan to support the early childhood workforce, Colorado’s Early Childhood Workforce 2020 Plan (EC Workforce 2020 Plan) provides an ambitious roadmap for a comprehensive professional development system designed to achieve these priorities over the next three years.

NEED FOR A STRONG EARLY CHILDHOOD WORKFORCE

Early childhood educators are significant contributors to children’s healthy development; a myriad of short- and long-term benefits result from high-quality early learning experiences, and an effective, consistent, diverse, and skilled workforce is the key driver of quality. Therefore, it is essential that early childhood educators have the competencies needed to develop strong relationships with young children, to provide experiences that are supportive of their development and learning, and to equitably serve children from diverse backgrounds.

In Colorado, 63% of children under six live in households where all parents/caregivers are working¹. Yet, many communities still lack an effective early childhood workforce in whom families can place their trust and with whom young children can thrive. This is more than a family matter; it impacts the health of communities and the state. The early childhood sector is a cornerstone of local and state economic health, enabling parents to work and financially provide for their families, while employing a large workforce of teachers, administrators, and other professionals.

Despite the necessity of this sector for families and to the economy, there are severe gaps in the availability of qualified professionals; these gaps are predicted to widen in the next eight years. Currently, more than 60% of Colorado’s early childhood center directors report a top challenge to be finding qualified staff². As the state’s economy continues to grow, the Colorado Department of Labor and Employment predicts a substantial increase in the need for early childhood teachers and leaders – between 33-43% (depending on job category) through 2025³. Recruiting and retaining highly-qualified professionals will be an ever-increasing challenge if the state cannot find solutions to the compensation issues that plague the early childhood industry. Low wages, often at or near poverty levels, make it difficult to attract and keep experienced staff with higher levels of education.

Additionally, there is widespread agreement throughout the P-20 education pipeline that the more educators reflect the demographics of their students, the stronger the impact on children’s optimal development. Serving a growing and changing population and reflecting the diversity of that population requires an intentional focus on building a highly-qualified, effective, and diverse early childhood workforce for Colorado.

EARLY CHILDHOOD COLORADO FRAMEWORK

An effective early childhood workforce is a state priority, as indicated by the Early Childhood Colorado Framework. The Framework calls for ensuring education, coaching, and training are available so that adults are equipped to develop strong relationships with children, engage them through positive interactions, and support their cognitive, physical, and social-emotional development. In addition, it calls for developing strategies to retain the early childhood workforce. These are key components of the EC Workforce 2020 Plan.

DEVELOPMENT OF COLORADO'S EARLY CHILDHOOD WORKFORCE 2020 PLAN

In 2010, Colorado developed the Early Learning Professional Development System Plan (2010 Plan), a blueprint to ensure the preparation and support of a highly-qualified early childhood workforce. Having achieved most of the goals set forth in Colorado's 2010 Plan, the Early Childhood Leadership Commission (ECLC) charged the Early Childhood Professional Development Advisory Working Group (ECPD Advisory) to update the plan. The ECPD Advisory and Program Quality and Alignment Subcommittee of the ECLC recruited a cohort of early childhood stakeholders, the Colorado Cohort, to organize and implement taskforces to update the plan. From September 2016 through June 2017, the Colorado Cohort and its four taskforces – comprised of over 50 cross-sector representatives from across the state – worked collaboratively to develop an innovative plan designed to improve the effectiveness of the early childhood workforce and the systems that support them. The development of the EC Workforce 2020 Plan was guided by the ECPD Advisory and the ECLC and informed through Colorado's participation in the Incubation to Innovation (i2I) project with the National Academy of Medicine.

COLORADO'S EARLY CHILDHOOD WORKFORCE 2020 PLAN COMPONENTS

The EC Workforce 2020 Plan provides an ambitious three-year roadmap for a comprehensive professional development system designed to recruit, retain, compensate, develop, and support a high-quality, diverse, early childhood workforce so Colorado's young children from birth through age eight and their families can thrive. The first section of the plan outlines the shared vision and guiding principles that steered the development of the goals, which are designed to support early childhood professionals. Next, the plan provides detail about the following six aspiring and visionary goals, with key objectives and activities that will best support and advance the workforce.

The EC Workforce 2020 Plan is ambitious yet achievable. Implementing these goals will require significant work and coordination amongst state agencies, higher education, early childhood councils, community-based programs, and other key stakeholders. One of the first steps in implementing the plan will be prioritizing the activities and determining how these can be achieved. In some cases, activities and goals can be addressed through better coordination of current funding streams; in others, new investment from public and private sources will be needed to support the work. Through cross-system collaboration and the development of new partnerships, we can make great strides towards implementing the EC Workforce 2020 Plan and ensuring a strong early childhood workforce for Colorado's children and families.

EC WORKFORCE 2020 PLAN GOALS

CONNECTIONS ACROSS THE EARLY CHILDHOOD WORKFORCE

Colorado's 2010 Plan focused primarily on early childhood educators, those who care for young children birth through age eight in center-, school-, and home-based settings. The EC Workforce 2020 Plan, while focused largely on these same educators, provides for intentional outreach to the larger early childhood workforce, beyond early childhood educators. We recognize that the early childhood workforce is comprised of many adults who educate, care for, and support young children and their families, including home visitors, early intervention specialists, early childhood mental health specialists, family, friend, and neighbor caregivers, and others. All of these adults play a critical role in the lives of young children and their families. This is why the updated plan specifically and intentionally includes activities to find alignment, connections, synergy, and areas of support for the early childhood workforce beyond early childhood educators; some of these conversations have already begun. Additionally, while we know much of the early childhood field faces issues related to recruitment, retention, and compensation of the workforce, we have prioritized our activities in these areas to focus on early childhood educators working with young children birth to five, due to the urgent need in this sector.

KEY ACCOMPLISHMENTS OF THE 2010 EARLY LEARNING PROFESSIONAL DEVELOPMENT SYSTEM PLAN

The 2010 Early Learning Professional Development System Plan (2010 Plan) included seven overarching goals. Colorado's Race to the Top Early Learning Challenge Fund grant provided funding to create the infrastructure of the early childhood professional development system and allowed the state to achieve most of the goals set forth in the 2010 Plan. Through ongoing partnerships across the state, major accomplishments of the plan include:

- Implementation of research-based Colorado's Competencies for Early Childhood Educators and Administrators (Competencies) serving young children birth to age eight, which provided the foundation for the early childhood professional development work.
- Development of the Colorado Shines Professional Development Information System (PDIS), an online learning management system and professional registry. Currently, the PDIS has over 33,000 registered early childhood professionals, who have completed over 157,000 online courses aligned with the Competencies.
- Creation of Colorado's Early Childhood Professional Credential 2.0, which recognizes formal education, ongoing professional development, experience, and demonstrated competencies. As of June 2017, over 10,000 new credentials were awarded through the PDIS.
- Incorporation of credentials, competency assessments, and professional development plans into Colorado Shines Quality Rating and Improvement System (QRIS).
- Expansion of the Statewide Coaching Network, with (as of June 2017) more than 200 professionals receiving the Colorado's Coaching Credential, more than 400 professionals completing the Relationship-Based Professional Development (RBPD) training, and more than 100 professionals participating in local reflective supervision groups.
- Alignment of higher education early childhood programs and professional development training programs with the Competencies.
- Implementation of a $2 Million Race to the Top funded scholarship and incentive program for early childhood professionals.

We believe that the EC Workforce 2020 Plan continues to build upon the movement and support in Colorado to elevate the early childhood profession through innovative and collaborative work with key and diverse stakeholders.

PAMELA HARRIS, REBECCA KANTOR, AND NANCIE LINVILLE – CHAIRS, ECPD ADVISORY

Vision & Guiding Principles

Building on the vision and guiding principles of Colorado’s 2010 Plan, the Colorado Cohort adopted the following as a framework and shared vision around which the goals for EC Workforce 2020 Plan were developed.

VISION

- A collaborative professional development system is developed by and built upon authentic partnerships among a diverse set of early childhood stakeholders.

The EC Workforce 2020 Plan sets forth an ambitious, yet achievable, plan to guide Colorado’s work to develop, support, recruit, retain, and compensate the early childhood workforce. We are excited to work with partners around the state to continue to make progress in providing quality early care and education settings for all children.

Early childhood education programs in the state, like ours, are finding it increasingly difficult to attract and retain highly-qualified professionals. The EC Workforce 2020 Plan outlines actionable steps the state can take to address things like better compensation and workforce well-being, so we have strong educators for the state's youngest children.

Key Questions about the Early Childhood Workforce

An important component of the EC Workforce 2020 Plan is to ensure data and information are available to answer key questions about the early childhood workforce and the professional development system that supports them. Some of those key questions are below. By answering these questions and looking at the data over time, the state can monitor how the EC Workforce 2020 Plan is being implemented and the effects of implementation on both the early childhood workforce and the professional development system.

1. What are the demographics of Colorado's early childhood educators, and how do they vary by role, sector, setting, age of children served, and region of the state?
2. What education, preparation, and training have early childhood educators received?
3. How long have early childhood educators been in their current program and in the field?
4. Why do early childhood educators stay and leave their early childhood programs, where do they go, and what are the characteristics of those who stay and leave? What is the turnover rate for early childhood educators, and how does it vary by role, sector, setting, age of children served, and region of the state?
5. What does coaching look like in early childhood programs and for early childhood professionals?
6. What education and career pathways do early childhood students most commonly pursue, and are there opportunities to streamline pathways?
7. What is the race, ethnicity, gender, and primary language of students enrolled in and/or who graduate from early childhood two- and four- year institutions of higher education?
8. How does the diversity of Colorado's early childhood educators compare to the diversity of the children and families served both statewide and regionally?
9. What is the state's total scholarship investment annually?
10. How do students pursuing early childhood certificates and degrees pay for school (e.g., financial aid, scholarships, self-pay)?
11. What are the current wages of early childhood educators, and how does this vary regionally and by sector, setting, educator demographics, and age of children served?
12. To what degree do early childhood educators have access to workplace benefits, such as health insurance and paid time off?
13. Are high-quality professional development experiences (preservice and in-service) available equitably throughout the state and by role, sector, and setting?
14. How has funding changed to support early childhood educators and the professional development system?
15. What progress has the state made on implementing the EC Workforce 2020 Plan?

Glossary of Terms Used in the Plan

Alternative pathways provide unique and innovative ways to achieve job attainment and advancement. They support multiple entry points and exit points to the field and acknowledge the myriad of ways professionals learn and demonstrate knowledge, skills, and competencies. These pathways are expected to meet comparable expectations of rigor, accountability, and transparency as traditional pathways. They are to be competency-based, avoid conflicts of interest among systems of professional preparation, and encourage collaboration among higher education, training, technical assistance, coaching, and other systems.

Articulation in this context refers to the transfer of professional development credentials, credits, courses, or degrees from one institution to another, ideally without a loss of credit. Articulation can be from high school to college, and/or between and among two- and four-year institutions of higher education.

Career pathways are comprehensive education and training systems that provide a clear sequence of coursework and training credentials aligned with employer and industry needs.

Colorado's Competencies for Early Childhood Educators and Administrators provide clear descriptions of what educators need to know and be able to do to provide quality care and education in a variety of settings.

The Colorado Early Childhood Professional Credential, awarded by the Colorado Department of Education, is a voluntary, tiered system of credentials that recognizes increased knowledge and experience for those who care for and educate young children birth through age eight. The credential provides a common system for all Colorado early childhood professionals to document and quantify their professional growth and accomplishments. Individuals accumulate points along four pathways—Formal Education, Ongoing Professional Development, Experience, and Demonstrated Competencies.

The Colorado Early Childhood Sector Economic Analysis is a research study completed by University of Denver and Brodsky Research & Consulting that details the impact of the early care and education industry and the early childhood workforce within Colorado.

The Colorado Early Childhood Workforce Survey, conducted by the University of Colorado, Denver and NORC at the University of Chicago, was completed by over 6,500 professionals in the winter of 2016. The survey asked questions related to access to professional development, working conditions, compensation, and workforce well-being.

Colorado Shines refers to the two aligned and coordinated systems (QRIS and PDIS) in the state designed to rate and improve the quality of early childhood programs and to develop and support the early childhood educators who work within those programs. See Quality Rating and Improvement System (QRIS) and Professional Development Information System (PDIS) for more information.

Compensation in the EC Workforce 2020 Plan is defined broadly to include wages and workplace benefits, such as health insurance, paid time off, retirement, and other benefits.

Competencies are the abilities or skills needed to effectively fulfill job duties of specific positions or roles.

Competency-based evaluation or assessment is a way to demonstrate mastery of a set of predefined knowledge and skills, or competencies.

A diverse early childhood workforce is one that reflects diversity of race, ethnicity, culture, language, gender, and ability.

Early Childhood Council Leadership Alliance (ECCLA), a nonprofit membership organization formed to support Colorado’s local early childhood councils, is dedicated to providing leadership, innovation, influence, and local perspectives at the state level to ensure Colorado has a comprehensive, quality early childhood system.

Early childhood councils are regionally-based entities that focus on advancing programs, resources and support around early learning, family support and parent education, and social, emotional, and mental health. They work to bring together local partners to improve the quality and availability of early childhood services for children and families in their communities. Early childhood councils support the implementation of Colorado Shines and distribution of quality incentives to licensed early care and learning programs.

Early childhood educators are those who work with children birth through age eight and are responsible and accountable for planning and implementing developmentally appropriate experiences that advance their cognitive, physical, and social-emotional development. Also included are those who provide support and/or leadership for these activities. Early childhood educators may work in schools, centers, or family child care settings and may include teachers, assistant teachers, directors, family child care professionals, and others.

The Early Childhood Leadership Commission (ECLC) is a 20-person body, appointed by the Governor, and charged with improving outcomes for pregnant women and young children in Colorado birth to age eight and their families by advancing the alignment, coordination, and efficiency of programs and services.

The Early Childhood Professional Development Advisory Working Group (ECPD Advisory), a working group under the Program Quality Alignment Subcommittee of the Early Childhood Leadership Commission, is a group of cross-sector stakeholders charged with coordinating the implementation of the Early Childhood Workforce 2020 Plan and providing guidance around the early childhood professional development system.

The early childhood workforce includes those who provide services to support young children birth through age eight and their families. This may include, but is not limited to, early childhood educators, home visitors, early intervention specialists, early childhood mental health providers, preschool teachers, kindergarten through third grade teachers, infant-toddler teachers, family child care professionals, and family, friend, and neighbor caregivers.

ecConnect is a data system administered by ECCLA on behalf of Colorado’s early childhood councils. The system, initially developed by Denver’s Early Childhood Council, is used by councils to administer the full life cycle of quality improvement initiatives including the application and award process for early learning programs and the related activities including coaching, technical assistance, and quality purchases driven by each site’s Colorado Shines quality improvement plan.

The EC Workforce Program and Policy Scan, completed by Clayton Early Learning in 2016, provides a comprehensive index of early childhood funding sources in Colorado. Additionally, it provides a detailed list of initiatives, in and outside of Colorado, targeting recruitment, retention, and/or compensation of early childhood educators.

The P-20 education pipeline refers to the education system from birth through college, including infant-toddler settings, preschool, K-12 schools, and colleges and universities.

Professional development includes both professional preparation and ongoing professional development and can take the form of college coursework, training, technical assistance, mentoring, coaching, or other job-related support to increase the competencies, knowledge, and skills of early childhood educators.

The Colorado Shines Professional Development Information System (PDIS) is an online, competency-based system supporting professional development and career pathways for Colorado’s early childhood workforce. It tracks training and education, provides high-quality online professional development, and supports individuals to choose professional development according to their competency level, their professional development goals, their job role, and their geographic location.

The early childhood professional development system refers to a comprehensive system of preparation and ongoing development and support for the early childhood workforce working with and on behalf of young children from birth through age eight across sectors, settings, and roles. Such roles may be in Head Start, for-profit, and nonprofit child care programs in centers and homes, preschool programs in community-based and school settings, early grades in public and private schools, early intervention and special education services, resource and referral agencies, higher education institutions, and state departments related to early childhood education (e.g., education, licensing, health).

The Program Quality and Alignment Subcommittee is an advisory group of diverse representatives formed under the direction of the Early Childhood Leadership Commission to identify opportunities for, and barriers to, the alignment of standards, rules, policies, and procedures across programs and agencies that support young children and to enhance the alignment and provision of services and supports for young children.

The Colorado Shines Quality Rating and Improvement System (QRIS) is a program that rates, monitors, and supports early learning programs. Its primary functions are to connect Colorado families with quality child care and to help participating programs and professionals improve their quality through assessment, training, and tools.

Sector refers to the funding sector or system that delivers early childhood education, such as child care, Head Start, or preschool, including public, private, and faith-based.

Setting refers to the location in which early childhood education occurs, such as schools, centers, or homes, which may be public or private, for-profit or nonprofit.

The Talent Pipeline Report, published by the Colorado Workforce Development Council, analyzes “top jobs” – high-demand, high-growth jobs that pay a living wage. Additionally, it highlights key information about top talent issues in the state, such as the gig economy, the impact of demographics on our future workforce, and the impact of postsecondary education on employment outcomes.
