Call for Papers

The Nonprofit Academic Center Council (NACC) will be hosting its 2015 Conference on Nonprofit & Philanthropic Studies in Chicago at DePaul University from July 15-16, 2015. The theme is “The Meaning of ‘Nonprofitness,’ Capturing it in Research, Curriculum, & Programming.” This conference brings together academics, scholars, practitioners, and administrators from around the world to discuss, learn and share tactics and methods that support and build university-based educational programs focused on nonprofit and philanthropic studies. Topics for conversation include instruction, pedagogy, research and substantive issues in education and administration. Graduate students are also encouraged to submit. The call for papers and other conference information is available on the NACC website. Click here to create a conference account and/or submit a proposal.

NACC Congratulates and Welcomes Newly-Inducted Nu Lambda Mu Honor Society Members!

The international Nu Lambda Mu Honor Society was established by NACC to recognize graduate students dedicated to the study of nonprofit management, philanthropy, and social entrepreneurship/enterprise. Its mission is to advance the study of nonprofit organizations and their function in society and to promote scholarly achievement among those who engage in these academic pursuits. Congratulations and best wishes to the Fall 2014 inductees!

Indiana University's Lilly Family School of Philanthropy Seeks to Fill Charles Stewart Mott Foundation Chair on Community Foundations

The Indiana University Lilly Family School of Philanthropy (LFSOP), located at IUPUI, seeks to fill an endowed chair in the area of community philanthropy. A significant record in the area of community philanthropy, community capacity and/or community building is required. The preferred candidate would have research interests in community foundations and their role in civil society locally, nationally, and globally. A Ph.D. is required but the disciplinary field is open and may be in anthropology, economics, history, nonprofit management, political science, public policy, sociology, or other related fields. Teaching and research experience in philanthropic studies (broadly defined) or related area of interest is strongly desired. The chair is expected to teach and mentor students at the doctoral, masters and undergraduate levels for 50% of their time. The LFSOP offers an inter-disciplinary degree in philanthropic studies that attracts diverse students interested in broad issues related to philanthropy, including nonprofit organizations, social movements, grassroots associations, foundations, giving and volunteering. For the other 50% of their time the chair is expected to conduct research, publish in the field, and provide service to the School, campus, and the field. The chair is expected to maintain an active research agenda. An advisory committee comprised of academic and practitioner leaders in this field, will be available to support the chair and help develop a research and teaching agenda for the chair's work in this space. For further information contact Lehn Benjamin, Associate Professor at sopsrch@iupui.edu or 317-278-8906 or go to <http://www.philanthropy.iupui.edu/job-openings/charles-stewart-mott-foundation-chair-on-community-foundations>.

Seattle University Invites Applications for Tenure-Track Assistant Professor

The Master of Nonprofit Leadership program at Seattle University invites applications for a tenure-track Assistant Professor beginning in September 2015. Responsibilities include teaching courses in fundraising, marketing, finance and/or philanthropy at the master's level, with occasional teaching at the undergraduate level. The successful candidate will also be expected to develop and maintain an active, high quality program of research/scholarship, and engage in program and university service activities. Ideal candidates will have experience teaching adult learners/working professionals and experience teaching online-hybrid classes. The candidate should have experience working with and/or consulting in nonprofit or philanthropic organizations as well as evidence of high quality research in the areas of nonprofit fundraising, marketing, finance or philanthropy. For additional information, go to <https://jobs/seattle.edu>. Review of applications will begin on January 2, 2015 and continue until the position is filled.

Next Editor-in-Chief for NML Announced

NACC member, the Jack, Joseph and Morton Mandel School of Applied Social Sciences at Case Western Reserve University is pleased to announce the selection of Dr. Mark Hager as the next editor of the journal, Nonprofit Management & Leadership, based at the Mandel School. Following an international call in partnership with John Wiley & Sons, the publisher of NML, a distinguished review panel reviewed the applications and recommended the final candidate. We are delighted that Dr. Mark Hager of Arizona State University has accepted the editorship of NML starting in January 2015 for a three-year term. Dr. Hager is an exceptional nonprofit scholar and will bring tremendous leadership and energy to the work of the journal. Please join the Mandel School in congratulating Dr. Hager. We also thank outgoing editor, Dr. Duncan Neuhauser, for his exceptional service to the journal during his tenure.
