Public Safety Notice

A SERIES OF COLD FRONTS THIS WEEK WILL BRING SNOW AND UNSEASONABLY COLD TEMPERATURES

SPOKANE NATIONAL WEATHER SERVICE ANNOUNCEMENT

Issue Date: Monday, October 19, 2020

October 19 - 25 Weather Overview

Monday: Mild and Locally Windy.

Wednesday: Chance Rain and Snow

Friday and Saturday: Lowland Snow Accumulation Possible.

Sunday: Unseasonably Cold.

KEY POINTS:

A series of cold fronts this week.

Monday — Today’s front will produce locally windy conditions reservation wide.

Wednesday — Breezy/ possible rain / mountain snow

Inchelium:

- A 20 percent chance of rain. Snow level 2500 feet rising to 3200 feet in the afternoon
- North winds 5 to 8 mph

Keller:

- A 20 percent chance of rain before 11am. Snow level 2700 feet rising to 3300 feet in the afternoon
- North winds 5 to 11 mph.

Nespelem:

- Winds will range from 5-14 mph.

Omak:

- A 20 percent chance of rain before 11am Snow level 2300 feet rising to 2900 feet in the afternoon
- Winds will range from 5-16 mph

Friday/Sunday — Winter-like conditions later this week for the entire reservation

- Friday — a chance of rain and snow
- Saturday — much colder temperatures may cause local lowland snow accumulations
- Sunday — possible record cold. Mostly sunny, with temperatures highs ranging from 36—38

Please monitor the National Weather Service website for the latest updates at https://weather.gov/spokane

COLVILLE TRIBAL EMERGENCY CONTACTS:

Colville Tribal Police
509-634-2472, 911 or 800-551-5800

Mt. Tolman Fire Center
509-634-3100