Arabtec-TAV group nears $3bln Abu Dhabi airport contract

An Arabtec Holding consortium that includes Greek and Turkish firms is on the cusp of securing an estimated $3 billion contract for the expansion of Abu Dhabi's international airport, four industry sources told Reuters. The group, which includes Turkey's TAV Insaat and Athens-based Consolidated Contractors Company (CCC), have pipped three rival consortia for the lucrative contract to build a midfield terminal building. An Abu Dhabi-based source aware of the deal said the TAV-Arabtec group had been chosen but that final details still needed to be hammered out. Meanwhile, a source in the consortium said the group "had gotten positive signals but no official information had been sent." "They have the lowest bid ... it's likely they will win it," said a third source, who was involved in the bidding process, speaking on condition of anonymity. TAV declined to comment. Arabtec and CCC officials in the United Arab Emirates were not immediately available for comment. An ADAC spokesman said an announcement would be made only once the tender is finalised. Abu Dhabi Airports Company (ADAC) had short-listed four groups in February for the general construction contract. The new terminal will be around 700,000 square metres in size, according to ADAC's website, and is a key part of an ambitious expansion programme at the airport in Abu Dhabi, the UAE capital. The midfield complex will include the terminal building, passenger and cargo facilities as well as duty-free shops and restaurants for a total capacity of up to 40 million people a year. It is slated to become operational in 2017. The other three shortlisted groups were Bechtel Corporation-ENKA-Al Jaber Group, Hyundai Engineering & Construction-Kumho Engineering & Construction-China State Construction Engineering Corporation-Al Shafar General Contracting Company and Samsung-ACC-Six Construct. – Reuters / ANSAMed

UAE - Investment Opportunities

Good reasons and ways to invest in Italy were presented during a special session on Italy in the framework of the Annual Investment Meeting, an initiative organised by the United Arab Emirates (UAE) Ministry of Foreign Trade, which is currently taking place in Dubai. The quality and flexibility of competences, public finances under control, the presence of some of the most industrialised regions in the world, the strategic geographical location are only some of the benefits of investing in Italy presented to the region's potential investors by the Italian delegation, composed of the Diplomatic Advisor to the Italian Minister for Economic Development Daniele Mancini, the chairman of the National Institute for Foreign Trade (ICE) Riccardo Monti and Invitalia's foreign investment director Giuseppe Arcucci. Trade relations between Italy and the UAE continue to strengthen, with an increase in imports totalling 26% for a total of EUR 4 bln; what is more, the EUR 19 mln which were already invested in Italy by the emirates have a great potential for growth. In the presence of the Italian ambassador in the UAE Giorgio Starace and of the top management of the Italian financial and entrepreneurial community in the UAE, the delegation presented the main opportunities for investment currently available, from ITC to logistics, from traditional tourism infrastructures to the most innovative environmental technologies. Invitalia, the government's agency created in order to attract foreign investments will be at the event with its own exhibition area for all of the three days. (ANSAMED)

Steady Recovery for the UAE

Signs of recovery are registered for the real estate and building sectors in the UAE, who come up in second place among the GCC (Gulf Cooperation Council) nations with planned 75 billion dollars to be invested between 2012 and 2016, preceded only by Saudi Arabia with 119 billion dollars. Third place for Qatar with 26 billion dollars, despite the massive infrastructural development (600 billions) scheduled for the FIFA World Cup in 2022. A research from Alpen Capital reveals optimistic expectations for the future of Dubai, indicating a demographic and immigration increase due to a solid growth process set by the economic recovery of the Emirate. (ANSAMED)

Made in Italy Conquers the UAE

Italian exportations towards the UAE in 2011 hit a 4,5 billion euro record, while Italian companies signed off orders for a total of 7,5 billions. The Emirates market is known to appreciate the excellence of Italian products, starting from the industrial machineries sector, as seen from the greatly increased request for it. The ambassador in the UAE, Giorgio Starace, claims that jewelry and fashion sectors play an important role in Italian export towards the UAE. Strong growth registered for the food processing sector as well, as seen by the 30% export increase in 2011 compared to 2010. Italian companies and banks have opened 190 representative desks while the Italian UAE resident community fluctuates between 8 and 10 thousand units with a notable growth in the last months. (AGI)

Qatar – The Emir invests in Italy

Monti's government gains another prestigious international partnership, as Doha declares itself ready to make new investments in Italy. Doha is said to be on the point of buying out part of the quota from Libic partners of Unicredit, and aims at consolidating trades with Finmeccanica: the main focus in on training planes M346 and Eurofighters, of which Finmeccanica is a producer together with the French, English and Germans. The Emir also set his eyes on Costa Smeralda (Sardinia's Emerald Coast). Indeed, the royal Qatar family is a few steps away from buying Costa Smeralda Holding, including lands and hotels possessed by the Agha Khan. The QIA (Qatar Investment Authority) is said to be evaluating a possible maneuver towards Telecom Italia Media. (ANSAMED)

Abu Dhabi Chases Dubai, luxury malls to double

The current 700.000 sqm of stores will double in the next three years, according to a study by DTZ, a company which specialises in international real estate. The plan seems to challenge the rate of Dubai's growth, a boom which saw it expand its shopping areas by 60% since 2005. Yas Mall will be second only to Dubai Mall, one of the largest shopping centres in the world with its 520 stores and its spectacular attractions. As the name suggests, it will be raised on Yas Island, the atoll which already hosts the Ferrari Park and super luxury hotels. There are also other commercial projects on the horizon. The Gallery, which opens in 15 months, is being built on Al Maryah Island, the new financial district which will host luxury executive hotels other than the new Stock Exchange. Then Boutique, a "conceptual" shopping mall dedicated entirely to high fashion brands, products and accessories. Apart from these luxury malls, another three malls should be opened by the end of the year: Pragon Bay on Reem Island, Capital Mall in Zayed City, Abu Dhabi's new diplomatic and governmental district, and Deerfields Town Squares in Al Bahia. With an annual expenditure of 3.5 billion euro, Abu Dhabi is no doubt trying to follow in Dubai's footsteps, the third city in the world for luxury brands (85%) after London and Hong Kong. From Dolce and Gabbana to Bottega Veneta, the Italian brands are ever present and much sought-after as also, all the Italian pret-a-porter. Imports in the clothes sector continue to show earnings: according to data from the institute for foreign commerce in Dubai, in 2011 Italy registered an increase of 17.4% in clothing and accessories.
