ANITA WING LEE BACK IN U.S. AFTER AIDING AND LIVESTREAMING SYRIAN HUMANITARIAN EFFORTS IN GREECE

Fort Lauderdale, Florida – (March 16, 2016) International broadcaster Anita Wing Lee has returned from Greece where she aided the Syrian Refugees' experience and livestreamed daily to raise global awareness.

Anita arrived in Lesbos, Greece on January 22 to help the thousands of refugees on the island. She spent five weeks working with different volunteer organizations and broadcasting daily to share firsthand experiences of Syrian refugees. Anita also shared compelling images via her Instagram account (@anitawinglee).

Before returning to the U.S., Anita traveled to Germany to livestream the refugees' conditions. "Berlin is the end point for refugees. The journey from Greece to Germany spans 2,000 miles. I feel a sense of relief when I see refugees who've made it here. But their journey is not over. They may have to wait months in limbo, in meager conditions at refugee camps, in Germany. The politics behind why all of this is happening is deep and convoluted. Honestly, it disheartens me to learn more about the war in Syria."

Although Anita has returned to the U.S., her humanitarian efforts continue. Soul Fam Fund is now Project Soul Fam, an initiative to create exposure for humanitarian efforts and world issues.
