Central Oregon's public lands are a defining treasure of our region. But next week, the Department of State Lands (DSL) will review a request to sell 400-acres of public land near Cline Buttes to developers of Thornburgh Resort.

When selling any state land, the DSL is required to consider its scenic and recreational value to the public.

Cline Buttes provides access to recreational opportunities and scenic value for a suite of vibrant communities, including hikers, bikers, runners, equestrians, bird watchers, and more.
