

Josh Berns

Kids run to cure breast cancer

Plan on walking, running or pushing a stroller Sunday, May 9, at the Kids for the Cure one-mile course at Legacy Village in Lyndhurst.

The event is the dream of 12-year-old Josh Berns, who wanted to do something to help people with breast cancer. Josh, the son of Jonathan and Patti Berns of Pepper Pike, went through his father's Rolodex to drum up sponsors, notably key sponsor Ganley Automotive Group. Organizers expect 1,000 children grades 1-8 to participate.

Registration opens at 8:30 a.m. and the walk starts at 9. For more information or to pre-register, visit the Web site www.kidsforthecure.org.
