

5th Pan-American Congress On Plants and BioEnergy

Santa Fe, New Mexico | August 4-7, 2016 | bioenergy2016.org

Two hundred participants are expected to gather for this international congress, making this one of the best places to link to the global developments in the bioenergy market.

This meeting represents the largest conclave of scientists from the major bioenergy research centers across the two continents in the coming year.

Networking and collaboration opportunities will be plentiful. Coffee breaks, meals, and other symposium gatherings—both formal and informal—will provide excellent opportunities for strengthening relationships and exchanging research project and business development ideas.

In particular, engagement with Pan-American colleagues forge strong collaborations around a common goal of making bioenergy a key component of national energy security.

Sponsorship at this meeting will gain expose your brand to experts who are the leaders of research and development in this important field.
