About T1DF. The Type 1 Diabetes Defense Foundation is a nonpartisan Oregon-based nonprofit 501(c)(3) dedicated to advancing equal rights and opportunities for all people with type 1 and other forms of insulin-dependent diabetes. We focus on the significant social impact of living with a condition that requires patients to make constant dosing decisions with a drug that, without careful management and constant monitoring, can kill them. T1DF strives to improve the regulatory, legal and social ecosystem essential to development and adoption of new technologies and therapies, with an explicit commitment to inclusive policies that will deliver for all Americans with diabetes, insured and uninsured, equal access to standard-of-care pharmaceuticals and equipment. T1DF accepts no funding from the pharmaceutical, pharmacy benefit management, or insurance industries.
