

Dear Potential CSA Customer:

Welcome to the 2017 Poché Family Farm Spring/Summer CSA season!

About our farm: We are a small family farm located in Independence, LA. Our farm, while not certified organic, is focused on sustainable agriculture using cover crops, organic pesticides and natural fertilizers. Poche Family Farm is committed to only selling what we grow and providing our customers with the highest quality produce year-round.

About the CSA: Community Supported Agriculture (CSA) is a seasonal agreement between member and farmer. By joining a CSA you pledge your support during the hardest time of year. Your investment allows us to cover the cost of seeds, soil amendments, and necessary materials to get the season started. In joining the CSA, you are sharing not only in the bounty of the harvest but the risks that are inherent in agriculture. We focus on crop diversity, giving us greater security in the event of crop failures and inclement weather patterns.

Full shares are adequate for families or couples, and we send out an email every week with the contents of your basket and recipes/ideas to help you use all of your veggies. Please bring your own reusable bags to pack your share or we will pack in plastic bags for you.

What you can look forward to: tri-color snap beans, chard, collards, cucumbers, eggs (non-soy, non-GMO), kale, lettuce, radishes, summer squash, winter squash, creole and gold tomatoes, mixed cherry tomatoes, heirloom tomatoes, eggplant, bell peppers, hot peppers, sweet peppers, green onions, snow peas, arugula, mustard greens, okra, purple hull peas, non-GMO corn, melons and red potatoes

How to buy a share:

Mail/Market - Complete the attached membership application and mail with payment to our farm address below OR save a stamp and turn in at the Hammond Farmers Market. We accept cash, check and credit/debit cards (additional fee for plastic).

Thank you for being a part of our farm!

Locally yours,
Albert, Charise, Billie & Camille Poché

Member Understanding & Commitment

(Please read and sign)

As a member of the Poché Family Farm CSA program in 2017, I understand that I am making a commitment for the entire growing season. I understand that, while the farmers will do their best to ensure a successful season, Poché Family Farm does not guarantee the exact total dollar value or amount of produce provided over the 2017 season. I understand that weather or other factors out of the control of the farm may affect crop production and as a member, I am sharing in the risk and reward of a local farm. While this has never been the case in our past CSA seasons we want to let customers know that sometimes things happen that are out of our control. I understand that share size and contents will vary over the course of the season due to weather conditions and seasonality. I understand it is my responsibility to pick-up my share at the designated time and location or send someone in my place. I understand that although the farmer rinses most of the produce before pick-up, it is my responsibility to wash all produce before preparation. I have read, understand, and agree to these terms regarding my member commitment and wish to join the CSA for the 2017 season!
